Walk for Beer.
Prices of 1832.
Out Goes Our Gold.
Could It, Might It Be?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"Walk with Walker, for beer."

Mayor Walker will lead a procession of citizens, expected to number more than a million, requiring 12 hours to pass a given point.

The idea of the parade is "beer for revenue."

WASHINGTON newspaper correspondents, in a Cosmopolitan Magazine article quoted by Cyrus H. K. Curtis' New York Post, are happy about beer prospects. According to the correspondents:

"Good beer will be selling legally in the United States within two years regardless of the Anti-Saloon League."

Would they bet on it? Probably not.

AT WELLINGTON, in New Zealand, rioters out of work threw stones at the House of Parliament, 150 windows were broken, some stores were robbed.

The amazing news here is that in some places food prices have gone back to the levels of 1832.

In Texas you may buy eggs for seven cents a dozen. Ten and two-tenths cents is the average egg price over the country. You buy butter for 17 cents in Tennessee, chickens for nine cents a pound in North Dakota, the country's average is 12.6 cents. Lamb costs 4.2 cents a pound in Texas and Montana. In Montana mules cost $34, horses $31.

IN THE PAST week $37,000,000 American gold has gone to Europe. Today, the steamship Europa will carry away at least $11,000,000 gold, nearly all going to France, a little to Holland.

Since gold is fetish, and the lack of it a calamity, why not keep the gold that is here? We did it in the war, with an embargo.

THAT NEED NOT mean "going off the gold basis." We can pay in gold, INSIDE THE UNITED STATES, and forbid gold exports. The President might announce to the other powers:

"We're going to keep all the gold we've got, some four billions, and we propose to gather at least twice as much more, until we own 80 per cent of the world's total gold supply. If you don't think we can do it, watch us.

"Our idea is to stop foolish shooting at the dollar, and foolish talk about gold. You can't say we're OFF the gold basis, if we are sitting ON 80 per cent of all the gold on earth."

COULD it be, MIGHT it be just BARELY possible that, in spite of denials by our "best minds," there are useful possibilities in certain kinds of public ownership?

John H. Perry, who owns newspapers and other things, and seems to make them go, has just bought, on Main street, Jacksonville, Fla., 500 feet of real estate frontage. That is enough to make real estate men in New York, Chicago and some other places turn pale, and shudder violently.

MR. PERRY, in reply to a question, explains his purchase thus:

"Jacksonville believes in municipal ownership, owns its city light and power, from which it makes a million and a half profits yearly, used to reduce taxation, owns its St. Johns River Bridge, which has now more than paid for itself, and contributes a quarter of a million a year to reduce taxes."

"That's Bolshevism."

But they may be mistaken.

RUSSIA HAS begun buying wheat in the United States, and the new customer is welcome.

A while ago Russia was selling wheat here, and that filled us with a strange alarm, although all that Russians sold was a mere "piking" for any one of half a dozen operators on the Chicago wheat pit.

WILLIAM TURNER, a young murderer 23 years old, insists on pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, although the judge offered him an opportunity to escape death by pleading second degree. The manner and talk of the young criminal showed new depths in the criminal mind.

When the judge asked the young man not to bring dishonor on his parents by insisting on going to the electric chair, he replied:

"They'll forget it in two days."

Capital punishment is abominable, with government imitating the murderer. But in past thousands of centuries of human brutality, it may have been useful, eliminating the naturally murderous and otherwise dangerous types.

JAPAN ANNOUNCES as permanent policy, an effort to limit airplane carriers among nations. She considers this weapon most dangerous to her cities. Japan also objects to "flying decks" on cruisers, able to carry airplanes within striking distance of enemy cities. United States cruisers soon to be built will carry 30 planes each.

Japan would not object, as far as the United States is concerned. Her intelligent statesmen know that our policy is defense, never attack.

BOY LINKED IN KILLING ENDS LIFE

Brother-in-Law Says Pair Beat Wife to Death, Left Nude Body by Roadside

WOOSTER, O., May 11.—(AP.)—The suicide of a 19-year-old youth shortly after he was implicated in a relative's confession of murder, provided a startling climax early today to an investigation of the slaying of the relative's wife.

The accused youth, Harold Young, fired a shotgun charge into his head just as officers arrived at his home, near here, to arrest him. His death came less than an hour after Herbert Meeker, Wayne County farmer, named Young as the actual slayer of Meeker's wife.

HUSBAND CONFESSES

Sheriff John Stevens, of Holmes County, said Meeker also implicated himself.

The nude body of Meeker's young wife, Gertrude, was found Monday morning lying in a creek near Millersburg. She had been killed by blows on the head.

About a mile away, officers found the husband's automobile with blood on the running board, wrecked against a tree. Search of the Meeker home later uncovered a blood-stained shirt.

WIFE 'NOT WELCOME'

The only motive advanced for the killing of Mrs. Meeker in her husband's alleged confession was that she was "not welcome" at his home. Meeker and his wife had been sperated several months, but she had returned to live with him a few hours before she was slain. Young was alleged to have participated in the killing out of "friendship" for Meeker.

Sheriff Stevens said Meeker related that the two men and the woman were riding in Meeker's automobile when Young struck Mrs. Meeker with a tire pump. Subsequent blows killed her, and the two men, then attempting to cover up the crime, sent the automobile hurtling down the road, driverless, to make it appear the woman had been killed in an accident.

AKRON MOORED IN CALIFORNIA

CAMP KEARNEY, Cal., May 11.—(AP.)—The world's largest airship, the U. S. S. Akron, drifted out of a foggy sky for an unscheduled mooring here at 1:40 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) today, three days out on a transcontinental journey.

The great sky liner battled the elements for a day in Texas before it was able to cross the lower Rockies and was forced to an emergency landing for fuel at the old Army encampment here, just north of San Diego, instead of completing the projected non-stop cruise to its western base, Sunnyvale, south of San Francisco.

Arrangements were made to put on 2,500 gallons of fuel. Two hundred bluejackets formed the ground crew which assembled before daylight to make fast the sky rider for its first mooring on California soil, after the longest trip it has undertaken.

Sprigle in Crash With County Auto

A county-owned automobile driven by Ray Sprigle, County Supplies Director, and another machine were damaged slightly when they collided at First avenue and Wood street, late yesterday. The other car was owned by John Madyea, Jr., of 3001 Arlington avenue.

Mellon Buys Breeches for Bow to King

MRS. DAVID K. E. BRUCE

U. S. Envoy Won't Tell Whether He'll Wear Them to Court

LONDON, May 11.—(INS.)—Fully prepared for "emergencies," United States Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon has acquired a pair of silk knee breeches, but hasn't yet decided whether or not to wear them at the royal court at Buckingham Palace tonight.

The glittering "plus fours" with fancy buckles and patent leather pumps to match were purchased some time during the last few days, it was learned today when inquiries were rewarded with the terse announcement:

Late this afternoon he said:

"If you want to see what I am going to wear, be at the embassy when I leave."

Amid the regal splendors of the white and gold throne room of Buckingham Palace, 800 matrons and debutantes from many lands, including 13 from the United States, tonight were to be presented to King George and Queen Mary at the first of the four royal courts of the 1932 season.

Senhora Regis de Oliveira, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, was to present the Americans. Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, daughter of Ambassador Mellon and official embassy hostess, was to be among those presented tonight. Tomorrow night, at the second court, after having formally met the King and Queen, she will herself make the American presentations.

VOTE DEVICE PROFIT QUIZ HITS SNAG

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, May 11.—The Senate voting machine committee today blocked efforts to learn from F. I. Hirsh, vice president and treasurer of the Electromatic Vote Machine Corporation, what he did with the 500 per cent profit he made on the deal by which the Poole Engineering Company sold more than $1,000,000 worth of voting machines to Allegheny County.

Senator Frank J. Harris, chairman of the committee, was overruled by Senators Joseph G. Armstrong and C. W. Parkinson, when he sought to permit questions as to the ultimate use of the profits, all of which the witness received in cash, paid by his brother, H. D. Hirsh, who appears to have been the whole works in the Electromatic Corporation.

H. D. HIRSH ON STAND

H. D. Hirsh went on the stand shortly before the committee adjourned for lunch and was examined by Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, deputy attorney general, on contracts made between himself and other individuals, all designed to facilitate the sale of voting machines in Pennsylvania.

Hirsh said he was "Pittsburgh representative" of the Public Service Commission, with a public office at 811 City-County Building, Pittsburgh, and a law office at 704 Grant Building. Any time his public duties interfered with his private practice he would resign, he said.

Hirsh said he had obtained rights to American voting machines in Pennsylvania and procured their manufacture by the Poole Engineering Company.

Hirsh was to resume the stand this afternoon, along with former Congressman John M. Morin, of Pittsburgh, who declared in ad-

Victory of Anti-Drys Continues to Mount In Ohio's Primary

Both Parties Name Candidates Urging Change in Law

COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—(AP.)—Anti-prohibition candidates in yesterday's Ohio primary election continued to amass decisive leads over their dry opponents as counting of votes progressed today.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, apparently nominated by the Republicans for United States Senator, was more than 50,000 ahead of his chief opponent, Louis J. Taber, national master of the Grange and a dry, when more than three-fourths of the ballots were tabulated.

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, who seemingly won the Republican gubernatorial nomination, was better than 26,000 ahead of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, the leading dry candidate.

FOE OF DRYS WINS

Former State Senator George H. Bender, a foe of the Anti-Saloon League, was apparently certain of one of the two Republican nominations for congressman at large. The other choice was undecided.

Most of the candidates indorsed by the Anti-Saloon League apparently were defeated by wide margins.

Although there was no direct vote on the prohibition issue, the primar results were interpreted by anti-prohibition forces as indicating that sentiment in Ohio has turned toward the moist side.

BULKLEY RENAMED

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, an anti-dry, was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for re-election, and Gov. George White,

Carrie Jacobs Bond Opens War on Birds

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—Birds and flowers are harmonious companions in songs, but Carrie Jacobs-Bond, composer, wishes to disassociate them in actuality.

The noted author of "A Perfect Day," accused butcher birds of damaging flower plots at her Pinehurst road home, and the police board today granted her gardener a permit to shoot them.

Kline Gives Breezy Outline Of Duties as Mayor

BUTLER, May 11.

Mayor Kline's testimony bristled with breezy comments on his duties or on the part he played in the letting of city contracts for supplies. Here are a few:

"I answer all letters whether from rich or poor . . . I am obliged to meet persons of importance: Gen. Soandso or Sir Henry Soandso."

"Succop said to me 'I think this (Mayview furniture) is the best contract I ever placed in my life'."

"I have faith in all my directors, as I do in the Governor and President of the United States.'

"I was the first Mayor ever to succeed himself in the history of the city.

"I turned the Mayview improvements over to Mrs. Rauh. I told her 'You are a big woman and I know you can carry it out.'

"The Department of Supplies spends $2,500,000 a year and buys everything from elephants to canary birds."

Vanderlip, Drenched Fighting Fire, Ill

SCARBOROUGH-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., May 11.—(INS.)—Drenched by a hose stream while directing volunteer firemen fighting a blaze in his daughter's home, Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, was confined to his home today.

The $50,000 blaze swept the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Conway and threatened Vanderlip's.

HEAVY DUTIES BALK HIS WATCHING EVERY DETAIL, MAYOR SAYS

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, Pa., May 11.—Picturing himself as overwhelmed by the varied duties of office, Mayor Charles H. Kline, on trial charged with malfeasance in the purchase of city supplies, today placed entire responsibility for all purchases on the shoulders of his subordinates.

Taking the witness stand in his own defense as the trial neared a close, Kline told the jury it would have been "humanly impossible" for him to supervise the $2,500,000 improvements at Mayview, including the big furniture contract which is the basis of several charges against him and his co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, whom he discharged as director of supplies.

So the Mayor turned the whole job over to Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Director of Welfare, he testfield, with this remark:

"You are a big woman and I know you can carry it out."

Questioned by his chief counsel, Charles B. Prichard, Mayor Kline gave a lengthy review of the duties of his office, which he said included relief work, keeping contact with various municipal commissions, interviewing 50 persons a day, answering letters to "rich and poor," while the Supplies Department, one of the branches of the government of which he is the head, was buying $2,500,000 worth of supplies a year, "everything from elephants to canaries."

Prichard asked him:

"Now, Mayor, would it have been possible for you to have performed and to have supervised the purchase of these properties!" (referring to Mayview).

"Humanly impossible."

The Mayor testified that he placed full confidence in the directors of the city departments and that when they submitted contracts and were satisfied, he gave his approval.

He was satisfied, Kline testified, that all provisions of the law had been carried out when he offered his signature to Supplies Department contracts.

Not once did he ever use his key to operate the check signature writing machine installed through the "thoughtfulness" for former Controller Henry Oliver Evans, the Mayor testified. His initials "CHK" on certain contracts simply meant the documents had been shown him before being forwarded to Council, he said.

Four dead men were referred to in today's testimony as having had a part in the letting of contracts which the Mayor and Succop were alleged to have awarded illegally.

DAVIS PROPOSES JOBLESS LOAN

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—Legislation to authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan $500,000,000 to cities and states for unemployment relief was introduced today by Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

At the same time a Democratic plan for economic recovery calling for a $2,000,000,000 public works program and $300,000,000 for loans to states and municipalities for relief of suffering resulting from unemployment, was presented by Senator Robinson, the party leader.

The financing would be by means of bond issues. In presenting the program to an intent Senate, the Democratic leader placed foremost in importance the balancing of the federal budget.

The subject of federal relief was getting more and more attention in the capital. President Hoover today called into conference Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Corporation, and Secretary Mills, his principal and almost constant financial advisor. Both declined devnitely to speak of the subject matter of their conference.

Woman Hunted as Kidnaper of Girl

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(INS.)—Accused of disrobing a 17-year-old girl and placing ceremonial gowns on her for "sanctification purposes," Mrs. Fern Wood, was ordered arrested today on kidnaping charges.

Mrs. Wood is said to be a member of the religious organization of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton. She was reported to have left her headquarters, at Bell, Cal., in her automobile accompanied by the girl, Esther Contreras, and two boys, one 19 and the other 17.

He lived up to his reputation of vieing with Jimmy Walker of New York, for honors as the nation's best dressed Mayor. He was immaculately garbed in a dark gray suit, blown pickle stuff color his handkerchief peeping from the lapel of his coat pocket.

The courtroom was only half filled as the Mayor was sworn in. There was a rustle of expectancy among the few spectators and witnesses.

Prichard examined Kline.

Q.—How long have you lived in Pittsburgh?

A.—Thirty-five years.

A.—Legal.

Q.—You were appointed to the bench by the Governor?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You resigned from the bench to become Mayor?

A.—Yes. I took office in January, 1926, and was re-elected in 1929. I was the first Mayor ever to succeed himself in the history of the city.

Q.—In the first count of this indictment it tells of the purchase of furniture for Mayview. What is Mayview?

A.—It is the city home and hospital to take care of the needy and unfortunate souls and those suffering from mental troubles.

Q.—Did you make a survey of Mayview?

A.—I did. As soon as I got into office.

Q.—There was a program of improvement planned for Mayview?

A.—Yes, we had many items in a bond issue and one was to take care of the unfortunates sleeping in the corridors at this institution.

Q.—How much was the appropriation?

A.—Two million five hundred thousand dollars.

Q.—In whose charge was this placed?

A.—Mrs. Rauh and the Department of Welfare. I told her "the whole jurisdiction is now in your hands. You are a big woman, and I know you can carry it out."

Q.—Who was the architect?

A.—Eric Fisher Wood.

Q.—Did you interfere in this selection?

A.—No.

Q.—Did the matter of purchasing personal property come under you?

A.—No. In the Department of Supplies.

Q.—Who was the engineer selected for Mayview plans?

A.—Morris Knowles.

Q.—And who made all the other selections?

Q.—Mrs. Rauh employed all these people.

Q.—Now, Mayor, would it have been possible for you to have performed to have supervised the purchase of these properties?

A.—Humanly impossible.

Duties of Office Overwhelming, Mayor Indicates in Testimony

Q.—Describe your duties.

A.—I answer all letters, whether from rich or poor. I interview on an average of 50 people a day. The department heads are continually consulting me. I am obliged to make speeches of welcome at conventions. I am asked for many letters inviting conventions to Pittsburgh. I am obliged to meet persons of importance; Gen. Soandso or Sir Henry Soandso.

I must work on the city budget. After going over the budget with these people I must work out with my accountants the amount of money required to run the city for the year. I am also called on in strikes. I consult with the Civil Service Commission. I cannot appoint anyone to a position with the city unless they take the Civil Service Examination.

Then I have the City Planning Commission and the Board of Adjustment that hears appeals on housing. The Art Commission which passes on every bridge and structure. These are a few of the things I am obliged to do. In every bond issue submitted to the people, it is obligatory upon myself and others to explain those items to the people we want to vote for them. There are also many councilmanic bond issues.

Q.—Do you have supervision of the Police Trial Board?

A.—I will come to that. All emergency appropriations are under me and the Controller. The most recent one was in direct relief. I called together all the social agencies of Pittsburgh and tried to alleviate the conditions of those unfortunates. I have sought other sources of revenue for taxation. I have asked the Government Research Bureau to help me. Then it is necessary to try to work out the problem of river and rail transportation.

We made selection of locations for terminals but held up for lack of funds. I must read the testimony of police and fire trial boards. In addition to this in the Department of Supplies they spend $2,500,000 a year and buy everything "from elephants to canary birds."

I am obliged to work out all contracts in the Public Works Department.

I am obliged to see that all the bonds are correct. These are some of the few things that I as Mayor am called upon to do.

Demand on Time Make Study Of Mayview Bids Impossible

Q.—With these demands on your time would it have been impossible to tabulate and investigate the bids for the furnishings at Mayview?

A.—Yes, sir.

A.—Yes.

Q.—I notice "OK CHK" on the furniture contract. Did you place it there?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did Director Succop tell you about the result they had worked out at Mayview?

A.—He said the question of Mayview furnishings had been worked out by the committee. He explained there were 181 items in this sheet and how the committee had reacted to each item.

Q.—Did he call your attention to the total amount?

A.—He did. A little over one hundred and two thousand dollars.

Q.—Did you speak of the fact that it was less than one hundred and forty thousand dollars? (which was the furniture appropriation)

A.—Yes, at the close. It was one of the things that made me put "OK CHK" on the contracts. I was proud that I did it.

DEAL SATISFACTORY

Q.—Were you satisfied they had worked out honest conclusions?

A.—I was. I said "Is Mrs. Rauh satisfied?" And Director Succop said yes. I asked if Mr. McDonough was satisfied. And he said yes. Succop said to me: "I think this is the best contract I ever placed in my life." When $140,000 was estimated and they kept it at $102,000, I was well satisfied and put my O. K. on the contract.

Q.—When the contract came to you did it bear any signatures?

A.—Yes. The successful bidder, then the Director of Supplies, then the City Solicitor and then to me.

Q.—After seeing these signatures were you assured all the prerequisites had been complied with?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—When you put your name to that contract did you believe the Director of Supplies used his best judgment?

A.—Yes, sir. I have faith in all my directors, as I do in the Governor and President of the United States.

Mayor Denies Ever Using Key To Check-Signing Machine

Prichard then moved to the purchase of rugs and chairs for Mayview. He showed Kline the tabulation for the purchase of bentwood chairs.

Q.—Did Director Succop explain to you how he reacted on the matter of the bentwood chairs?

A.—Yes. He told me they had samples and they wanted to get the most substantial chairs possible. He said he and Dr. Hammers had looked over all the chairs and were both of the opinion that the Puffinburg chair was best. Mr. McDonough came to the same conclusion. I said "If you are satisfied, taking everything into consideration, then I am satisfied to award the contract to the C. A. Puffinburg Company."

Q.—At the time you offered your signature to the contract were you satisfied that the provisions of the laws had been carried out in the Supplies Department?

A.—I was.

Q.—The letter accompanying the resolution for the purchasing of the Braun trucks bears "OK CHK." Did you place those letters there?

A.—I did.

Q.—Why?

A.—A lot of matters were being presented to Council which they should not have been burdened with. I thought I would put a stop to that. I notified all department heads they would be obliged to have my O. K. before sending anything to Council. It did not denote approval. I had no power to usurp the function of the legislative branch.

Q.—Now, Mayor, I show you these checks made to the order of Henry Braun. I see they bear your signature. Is that your actual signature?

A.—That is done on a check signing machine brought in by Henry Oliver Evans, the former Controller. Through the thoughtfulness of Mr. Evans, they bought this machine. It has on, key for my secretary, or my assistant secretary, and one for the Controller.

Q.—Have you ever personally inserted this key in the check signing machine?

A.—Never.

Assistant District Attorney Langfitt then offered, to save time, that the checks were signed by machine, but Prichard insisted on proceeding along his own lines.

Judge Finletter decided:

Quotes Succop on Complaint Sent Him by Coal Company

As the afternoon session opened Prichard asked:

Q.—Do you know Henry Braun?

A.—I know who he is. I have not talked with him personally for 10 or 15 years. All I knew about that purchase was from the records.

Q.—Referring to the coal contract for the Brilliant Pumping Station, Mr. Rose sent you a letter? What did you do with the letter?

A.—Any letter like that, a complaint, I sent to the department head and then got a report. In this case Mr. Succop happened to be in my office. I showed him the letter. He said: I don't know how the Pittsburgh Coal Company could know it was low bidder, when it has not got the tabulations from the Water Department."

Q.—You saw the tabulations on the coal bid later?

A.—I did.

Q.—Mr. Succop told you of his conclusions?

A.—Yes. I had to study the technical terms for a time to find out what he meant. He told me Hillman was the lowest bidder. I said "Are you sure?" He said yes. Mr. Lamphier (late head of the Bureau of Water), says so. I had faith in Mr. Lamphier too, and since his death I have named a reservoir as a monument to his memory.

The Mayor put on his spectacles to read various documents. Most of his testimony he addressed to the jury.

Q.—On the purchase of trucks from the Sewart Motor Truck Company were there bids?

A.—Mr. Succop and I discussed what would be the best trucks for the Bureau of Water. As Mr. Succop said, and rightly so, we have 70 miles of unimproved streets in Pittsburgh. Mr. Succop told me he talked with Mr. Kennon and Mr. Neely and they both agreed we need trucks that would give us strength and speed. They told me there were several lighter trucks there, too, but that they would not give the same service. I told them to award the contract. I was satisfied in my own mind that these trucks we bought were the best.

Q.—Were you satisfied the law had been complied with?

Satisfied Law Was Complied With on Purchase of Trucks

Kline was positive and lengthy in his testimony.

Prichard asked about the purchase of three trucks from the Brockway Motor Company, not the low bidder.

A.—Mr. Succop told me Mr. Neely said the Brockway truck was the best buy and that they had arrived at the stage where they should standardize their trucks. If two or three trucks were out of commission they could go right ahead with their work. I am not a technical man on automobiles, but that sounded like a way to save the city money. Mr. Neely also said price, service and upkeep was minimum and that led him to his conclusion. Mr. Strain was of the same opinion.

I thought they were absolutely right and I told them to go ahead and award the contract. I was satisfied all requirements of the law had been met.

Prichard moved to the purchase of the 12,250 feet of fire hose from the Hewitt Gutta Percha Company, not the lowest bidder.

Shannon and Others Testify For Succop; Truck Deal Up

Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon, George H. Deike, president of the Mine Safety Appliance Company, and Dr. E. W. Stevenson testified as character witnesses for Succop at the opening of the morning session. They were not cross-examined.

H. J. Neely, of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, testified he had recommended to Succop purchase of three Brockway trucks, even though the Lang Company had offered a larger trade-in.

Succop, recalled perhaps for the last time, testified that the contracts for Mayview furniture, coal, fire hose and two trucks were the only ones he had ever consulted the Mayor about.

Cousin of Coolidge Dies in Auto Fire

BOSTON, May 11.—(INS.)—Three persons, one a prominent lawyer and relative of former President Calvin Coolidge, were burned to death and three others seriously burned and injured today when the gas tanks of two automobiles exploded following a head-on collision in Brighton.

The dead were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Polard, Jr., of Newton Center, and Thomas McCaffery, of Roxbury. Polard was a prominent State street attorney and cousin of ex-President Coolidge. The crash occurred directly opposite the residence of William Cardinal O'Connell.

In the primary's presidential contests, President Hoover seemed to have made a clean sweep of the 55 Republican delegates, while Gov. George White looked the certain winner of all but one of the 56 Democratic delegates.

Townsend Gains in W. Va.; Kump, Hodges Race Close

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 11.—(AP.)—While T. C. Townsend gradually drew away from M. Z. White for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in primary returns today, a close race between H. C. Kump and Charles E. Hodges for the Democratic nomination was apparent on the basis of meager returns.

Anti-Saloon League Head Concedes Ohio Defeat

CLEVELAND, May 11.—(AP.)—The Anti-Saloon League through its superintendent, S. P. McNaught, today conceded the primary election to candidates which the league rated as "unsatisfactory."

McNaught said "indifference" on the part of the voters was largely responsible for the outcome of the election. McNaught said:

"The trend is not due to the fact that Ohio wants to slop itself with liquor, but shows that the majority of those who voted in the primaries have the fallacious notion that this state can get rid of the lawless element by ushering in a wet regime which has no constructive program to offer."

Good Government Stressed by Weil

Democracy is on trial for the first time in the history of the world, Attorney A. Leo Weil declared in an address before the Good Government Group, at a meeting in the Peoples Pittsburgh Trust Company, Squirrel Hill branch. He emphasized it is the moral obligation of the citizens to take part in the affairs of government and that solution of existing problems must come through educating youth in good government.

Mrs. Duke Denies Daughter's Troth

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. James B. Duke today denied a published report that her daughter, Miss Doris, heiress to the Duke tobacco millions and said to be the "richest girl in the world," is engaged to marry Elmer F. Quinn, an attorney, who succeeded Mayor James J. Walker in the State Senate.

VOTE MACHINE PROFITS QUIZ BLOCKED

Two Senators Object to Questions on Disposal Of Money Made in Deal

vance of his testimony that he had been active in securing the contract by which Allegheny County purchased the vote machines but that he had received no money.

INVESTED $5,000

After eliciting from F. I. Hirsh that he had put $5,000, of which $2,000 was borrowed from his brother, into a pool for securing voting machine contracts, and had received back his original investment and a profit of $24,650, Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, attorney for the Citizens Voting Machine Committee of Allegheny County, asked the blunt question:

"What did you do with the money?"

After answering that he did not put the money in a bank, Hirsh was halted by an objection from Attorney O. K. Eaton, acting as attorney for both Hirshes, E. N. Rosenthal and C. G. Brown, who were contributors to the "venture" fund.

Armstrong interjected:

Lindsay shot back:

"Let the committee ask the question. This is not my investigation, it is the inquiry by the committee, and I understood we were going to the bottom of everything."

Senator Harris said:

"We are. I rule the question as to what the witness did with the money should be answered. Every witness yesterday and last night was asked the same thing."

Eaton demanded:

"I want a ruling from the committee. The question here is whether there was corruption or illegality, and that is all. Allegheny County has the vote machines, there is no question but what these people were the low bidders, and the courts have upheld the contract. This man could have thrown the money in the sewer, if he wished, and it is none of the committee's business."

JURISDICTION EXPANDED

Miss O'Hara, deputy attorney general, advising the committee, explained to Eaton that the contracts of the Electromatic concern gave it the right to sell vote machines in other counties beside Allegheny, which expanded the jurisdiction, and Harris was outvoted by Armstrong and Parkinson on a demand from Eaton.

Armstrong then asked the direct question:

"Did you use this money for bribery or corruption?"

"No."

F. I. Hirsh previously had testified, as did every other witness connected with the Electromatic, that all details, financial and business were left to H. D. Hirsh, and he could remember practically nothing of numerous contracts entered into between the Electromatic and other corporations and individuals.

Eaton attempted to show the committee privately copies of what he termed the income tax reports of Rosenthal, Brown and the Hirsh brothers. The committee declined any private information, ruling also that the papers were not original.

CASH PAYMENTS

In a session which started at 2 p. m. yesterday, and lasted until 10:30 at night, with a short intermission in the evening, the committee drew from a procession of witnesses a diverting story of cash payments for services rendered. Each witness explained the cash deals by the assertion that he was afraid to trust his money to banks and wanted the money in big bills for deposit either in a safe deposit box, a safe, or secretion about the house.

R. F. Holmes, credit manager of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, touched the high spot of the evening testimony when he disclaimed knowledge of a contract involving himself, Hirsh and Morin, and which was introduced in evidence. Holmes said he could not remember signing the contract, which pledged him a fee in return for endeavoring to push sale of the machines.

Charles Pearson, one of the managers of the recent independent political campaigns in Allegheny County, was promised commission of $32,130 by the Poole company upon recommendation of Hirsh, for selling 285 machines to Northumberland and Schuylkill counties, but received only $10,200 of this amount. The Poole company is now in receivership.

Two Small Girls Toss Greenbacks Out Window

Speaking of heavy rains, take the case of Mrs. John Marsula, for instance, who yesterday from her kitchen window saw a hail of $1 bills floating down to earth.

Mrs. Marsula had been busy housecleaning, but when a further look assured that she was quite normal she was first amazed—and then she thought of her grandchildren.

Investigating, the woman ran to the second floor of the house, 810 Shore avenue, North Side, and there, leaning out a bedroom window, tossing out the greenbacks, were Dolores Townsend, 3, and her cousin, Bernice Marsula, 2.

With other adults of the household Mrs. Marsula braved the rain to gather up the bills thrown from the window. And when grandmother returned to the children—well, they won't do it again.

RASKOB URGES WINE, BEER

BOSTON, May 11.—(AP.)—The production and sale of light wines and beer and a tax levy, based on Canadian rates, is John J. Raskob's idea of the most effective single action Congress could take toward restoring prosperity.

The chairman of the Democratic Committee, speaking at a bridge party sponsored by the Massachusetts Democratic Victory Campaign Committee last night, said he did not agree that the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed outright, but would let the amendment stand and adopt the home rule plan. He favored placing a "new amendment" in the Constitution which would provide that nothing in the Constitution shall prevent any state from taking over complete control of the manufacture, transportation, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages.

COUNTY TO FIRE MANY WORKERS

Wholesale dismissals of county employes soon after May 25 were forecast in an order issued by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern today.

Presiding at the Commissioners' meeting, McGovern ordered Frank J. Chester, director of the Department of Highways, to prepare him a report which would enable the Commissioners to eliminate every "unnecessary employe" in the department. The report, McGovern said, must be submitted by May 25. He told Chester:

"Half of the fiscal year is over.

"We must balance the budget. If we don't, half the Courthouse will be shut down by October.

"Unless a lot of paring is done immediately, we will run over the estimate for this year.

STREET FLOOD JAMS TRAFFIC

Automobile traffic in Liberty avenue at Thirty-first street was tied up early today when a 12-inch water main of the city of Pittsburgh broke, undermining the thoroughfare for more than 75 feet.

Water bureau officials estimated that 1,000,000 gallons of water had escaped.

The pressure of the escaping water caused several fissures in the street. The National Valve and Manufacturing Company at 3101 Liberty avenue was sprayed when the water broke through the street surface with a loud report.

Police roped off the street to automobile traffic. Street car traffic, however, was not interrupted. The broken water main is one of two from Highland Park supplying downtown Pittsburgh.

Man Found Stripping Police Auto Held

Edward Baych, 27, of 2110 Roberts street, Troy Hill, was held for further investigation in Central Police Court today after two officers testified they found him stripping their police radio car of its radio and tools.

Officer James Swearingen and George Brubach, had left the car at Iten and Mt. Trop streets, to seek James Schoeppner, 17, of 853 Concord street, a parole violator, and when they returned found Baych stripping it.

Baych said he was drunk at the time.

Two Men Arrested In Rum, Lottery Raid

R. M. Harris and William Butler, arrested late yesterday when county detectives raided an alleged speakeasy and numbers lottery at 42 Wabash avenue, were to be arraigned today before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan. Numbers books and liquor were reported confiscated in the raid. District Attorney Andrew T. Park ordered the raid after receiving complaints about the place.

Business Chiefs Sponsor McKees Rocks Festival

McKees Rocks "Bargain Days" celebration, sponsored by the Booster's Committee of the McKees Rocks Chamber of Commerce, will start this evening with a mammoth parade in which more than 175 automobiles and trucks will participate.

The procession, headed by Chief Marshal Otto A. Zange, will form at Chartiers avenue and McKee street, at 5:30, and will move through the principal streets of the borough, West Park, Coraopolis, Stowe Township, Moon Run, Ingram, Sheraden and the West End. Police from the various municipalities, including Pittsburgh, will escort the caravan through their respective towns. There will be four bands and two calliopes in line.

The executive committee of the chamber includes Leon Buka, president; Frank Anzenberger, general chairman, and W. B. Forner and Sam Werlinick. Other officials are B. J. McDermott, W. H. Church, A. J. Hauser, Sam Lefkowitz, Robert L. Messick and Fred Beligrew.

Thursday and Friday, more than 100 merchants will offer their merchandise at bargain prices. Friday night, a dance will be held in the courtyard of the McKees Public School, Chartiers avenue.

HELENE COSTELLO WINS DIVORCE FROM FILM DIRECTOR

NAUGHTY BOOKS FAIL SHERMAN IN COURT

Film Actress Leaves Judge Smiling After Testifying That Mate Was 'Nagger'

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—Because Lowell Sherman, director-actor, allegedly told her she was his "mental inferior," Helene Costello, actress, was in possession of a divorce from him today.

After listening to Miss Costello's testimony yesterday, Superior Judge Thomas Ambrose granted the divorce on a cross-complaint. The actress testified less than three minutes, and had only one supporting witness, Mrs. J. Walter Ruben, who was on the stand for an even shorter time. The actress said of Sherman:

"He always acted in a very suspicious manner, and this caused me to suffer an inferiority complex. It made me very nervous."

Mrs. Ruben said of Sherman that "he was very opinionated, and it gave Miss Costello an inferiority complex."

Miss Costello charged cruelty, claiming he treated her inhumanly, nagged at her housekeeping and told her she was unfit as companion for one of his intellectual attainments.

Sherman, in his complaint, had charged cruelty also, claiming Miss Costello had hit him with a whip, struck his mother, drank to excess and kept a library of "filthy and erotic" literature.

A property settlement, the court was informed, was effected before the divorce proceedings were begun.

Miss Costello told that she married Sherman March 15, 1930, and left him last November. There are no children.

The judge denied a divorce to Sherman, then acting on the cross complaint, signed the decree for the actress.

And so ended the drama, the actress leaving court on the arm of her father, Maurice Costello, one-time matinee idol. She still was smiling.

39 ARRESTED IN DICE RAID

Four state troopers and Constable S. C. Graham, of Glenfield, overpowered two guards, broke through the third of three doors early today and arrested 39 men in what they said was one of the largest gambling places in Allegheny County, at 301 Chartiers avenue, in the same block as the McKees Rocks Police Station.

The raiders reported confiscating more than $2,000 in cash, a dice table and other gambling paraphernalia.

Morty Richardson was arrested as the proprietor.

Constable Graham said Richardson was found hiding in a cupboard holding a box containing $1,000 in cash and several pairs of dice. The rest of the money was found on the gambling table.

Richardson posted $1,000 bail on a charge of being the keeper of a gambling house, and the 38 others, many of whom, the officers said, were found hiding in cupboards and closets on the second floor, $10 each as visitors.

Dry Poll Favored By Ruth Bryan Owen

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 11.—(AP.)—A Florida referendum on prohibition is suggested by Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, dry crusader and Democratic presidential candidate.

If the people vote anti-dry in a referendum, she said she would take this as a mandate upon her in her future voting in Congress. Mrs. Owen is opposed for nomination by Mark Wilcox, of West Palm Beach, who is campaigning on a platform for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Barbara Stanwyck Burned in Fire Scene

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.—(AP.)—Realism got out of control on a movie lot yesterday and Barbara Stanwyck got burned on the leg. With George Brent, the actress was being filmed in a scene depicting a wheat field fire. The script called for the two to beat out the flames with damp sacks. The fire got hotter than was expected.

Girl Suing Berlenbach Gets $3,500 Verdict

SUSPECT SHOT IN AUTO CHASE

Two boys, one of whom was shot in the right arm while being pursued by city detectives in Spring Garden avenue last night, were being questioned today in connection with theft of more than a score of automobiles on the North Side in the last few months.

Those held were Elmer Best, 17, of 1454 High street, and William Noonan, 18, of 840 Concord street, detectives said. The two were riding in the automobile of J. J. Cooley, of 601 East Shady drive, Mt. Lebanon, stolen a short time earlier from Ferry street. When Detectives James M. Swearingen and George Brubach saw the car they pursued it in a police machine down Wickline lane into Spring Garden avenue, then to Constance street. Swearingen leaped to the running board of the stolen machine and Best, at the wheel, increased speed in an apparent attempt to hurl the detective off, Swearingen reported.

The stolen car sideswiped the sleuths' machine when Brubach attempted to force it to the curb, Swearingen fired once, wounding Best.

Both Sides Ask That Jury's Award Be Set Aside

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—A verdict of $3,500 was awarded by a Queens County Supreme Court jury today to Miss Claire Feidner in her $50,000 breach of promise suit against Paul Berlenbach, former world's light-heavyweight boxing champion.

Counsel for Miss Feidner filed a motion asking that the verdict be set aside on the ground the amount was inadequate, and Berlenbach's attorney filed a similar motion, alleging the verdict was contrary to the evidence. Both motions were denied.

Berlenbach's defense was that Miss Feidner broke their engagement.

Berlenbach said Miss Feidner called at his apartment in Astoria on May 15, 1929, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Nellie Kuskin, who told him that, if he did not marry Miss Feidner immediately the engagement would be broken. He said:

"I walked over to Claire, put my hand under her chin, raised her face, looked straight into her eyes and said: 'Do you feel that way about it?' She whispered, 'Yes.'"

Under cross-examination Berlenbach admitted that two weeks later he went out to Chicago to see the girl he later married. He was married July 2, 1929.

Reports that he was worth $500,000 he characterized on the stand as "ridiculous." His present assets, he said, would scarcely total $40,000.

Wealthy Heir Works As Coal Shoveler

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—James Cox Brady, 23, who inherited a fortune from his father and a directorship in 50 corporations from his uncle, the late Nicholas F. Brady, bought a pair of overalls today and went to work as a coal shoveler for $23 a week, at the Hunts Point avenue, Bronx, plant of the Consolidated Gas Company. He has held a place on the executive board of the company for almost a year and plans to learn the utilities business from the bottom up.

Bruening Demands Debt Cancellation

BERLIN, May 11.—(AP.)—Complete cancellation of political debts is the most important requisite to economic recovery of the world, Chancellor Bruening told the Reichstag today in a long speech in defense of his foreign and domestic policies.

Germany's contention that she no longer can meet reparations payments has not changed since the Chancellor first announced it last February, he said, adding that there is increasing evidence that the other powers are coming to realize the justice of that view.

Boy Slayer Suspect Fells Guard, Flees

DETROIT, May 11.—(INS.)—Frank Bastionell, 19, on trial for the slaying of a patrolman in a gas station holdup, today beat down a 65-year-old patrolman escorting him through a tunnel connecting the county jail and the courtroom and escaped.

His freedom was short-lived, however, for two other patrolmen, seeing a handcuff dangling from his wrist, arrested him a few minutes later in a restaurant.

GASTON MEANS GOES FREE ON $50,000 BAIL

Former U. S. Sleuth Linked In New $100,000 Swindle Of Helen Gould Shepard

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—The release of Gaston B. Means on $50,000 bond was authorized today by Justice James M. Proctor in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Agreement on the bond, originally fixed at $100,000, was reached after United States Attorney Leo A. Rover ruled out a professional bonding company.

The bondsmen accepted were Isaac B. Jones and Milton S. Kronheim. They signed bond holding them individually and jointly responsible for the $50,000.

Rover informed the court that the Justice Department is now seeking revocation of the bonding license of the Public Indemnity Company of Newark, previously offered by Means' counsel. This company, Rover said, arranged bond for nine men in the Brooklyn district and the men disappeared. Rover said judgment had been levied for the $47,000 bail against the bonding company, but that it remains uncollected.

FLIGHT FEARED

Rover said Means probably would disappear once he got free with any of the money, and further that a new criminal charge on a similar swindle case now being investigated was in prospect.

Though Rover did not say so, it developed authorities are investigating an allegation that Means obtained $100,000 or more from Mrs. Finley Shepard, of New York, who was Helen Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould.

The money he obtained from Mrs. McLean was to have been used in ransoming the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. There was no link to the child's case in Mrs. Shepard's connection. The story there is that Means was paid after representing he could give her information on Communist activities which might threaten her daughter or her fortune.

SHEPARD'S SILENT

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The household of Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, elderly daughter of the late Jay Gould, who is widely known for her patriotic and philanthropic activities, was silent today regarding word that official Washington was scrutinizing charges she had been mulcted of large sums by Gaston B. Means.

Mrs. Shepard has attracted attention in recent years by pronouncements against Bolshevism, Communism, anarchy and atheism. She is national vice president of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Daughter of the Wall street financier who said at his death he was the most hated man in the United States, the former Helen Gould was regarded as her father's closest confidant. She was one of the four trustees named to administer the $80,000,000 estate he left.

CURTIS ON TRIP

NORFOLK, Va., May 11.—(AP.)—With a new scene of activities off the Rhode Island coast reported for his negotiations, John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk intermediary in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, was still absent today on a secret trip undertaken last week. The Virginian-Pilot said today it had learned that the negotiations are now being conducted off Block Island lying east of Long Island.

On his trip northward, the Virginian-Pilot said, Curtis was taken to a point at sea, where he went aboard a boat containing representatives of the kidnapers. The paper said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left the naval base here a day later.

TARDIEU STAYS UNTIL JUNE

PARIS, May 11.—(INS.)—France today began a three-week period during which it will be virtually leaderless. Upon the request of newly-elected President Albert Lebrun, Andre Tardieu will remain in office until early in June, although he presented his resignation as premier late last night.

The handing in of the resignation is customary when a new president assumes office, and the premier generally is immediately designated again. Uncustomary, however, was the request of M. Tardieu that he not be reappointed, and that a successor be named as soon as possible. The move was expected, however, in view of Tardieu's defeat in Sunday's parliamentary elections.

Lebrun could have named Edouard Herriot, who will doubtlessly be elected premier when the new Chamber meets, June 1, or could have appointed an ad interim government.

M. Herriot was known to have been opposed to accepting office at this time, and Lebrun chose to have Tardieu expedite routine business until the convention of the new Chamber. No important decisions will be made until then.

A high over the Far Northwest is causing a substantial drop in temperature over Alberta to below freezing. Elsewhere mild temperature conditions prevail.

SENATE GROUP FOR BALANCED BUDGET

Must Save $230,000,000 to Accomplish 1933 Program, Finance Committee Says

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—The Senate finance committee, in its report on the billion dollar revenue bill submitted today in the Senate, declared the measure must be accompanied by $230,000,000 in savings to balance the budget next year.

The committee unanimously favored balancing the 1933 budget, pointing to deficits of the last three years.

Defending the numerous increases in rates and the new levies provided by the bill, the report asked the nation to consider the benefits of a sound government fiscal policy. The report said:

"Your committee appreciates that the industries selected, in common with all other industries, have been and are seriously affected by the depression and consequent decreases in business activity and profits.

MUST RAISE REVENUES

"It is realized that additional burdens at this time may seem unjustifiable and almost insurmountable.

"It is not believed, however, that taxes at the rates proposed by the bill as reported by your committee impose undue burdens upon industry and commerce or will seriously retard a return to normal business conditions.

"The required revenues must be raised.

"Benefits to be derived from the re-establishment of federal finances upon an unquestionably sound basis far surpass any possible disadvantages from the burden of additional taxes.

"It has been suggested that no effort should be made to balance the budget in one year, that the process of balancing the budget should be extended over a period of years and that the intervening deficits should be met by borrowing.

HOUSE POLICY

"Although frequently misunderstood, this is substantially the policy adopted by the House of Representatives and approved by your committee. Last year's deficit was met by borrowing. This year's deficit has been or will be met by borrowing.

"We would, by this bill, bring our budget back into balance in the third year—that is, in 1933—and even then without covering requirements for statutory debt retirements in the amount of $497,000,000."

Chairman Smoot presented the committee report. Senate leaders plan to take up the tax bill by tomorrow or Friday at the latest. Nigh sessions are in prospect in a drive to speed enactment of the legislation.

OCEAN TRIP AIDS MRS. MASSIE

ABOARD THE SS MALOLO, EN ROUTE TO SAN FRANCISCO FROM HONOLULU, May 11.—(INS.)—The shattered nerves of Thalia Massie are mending rapidly, it was evident today as she continued to appear in public apparently in the best of spirits.

Most of her time, however, is being spent in the seclusion of her cabin, recovering from her ordeal in Honolulu, where she was attacked by five half-castes.

Her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and her mother, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, however, remained on deck for several hours and mingled freely with other passengers.

Clarence Darrow, who defended Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and two naval enlisted men at their trial for the "honor slaying" of one of the alleged attackers, wirelessed acceptance of an invitation to address the Alameda County Bar Association in Oakland, Cal., Saturday night.

Quality Emphasized To Photographers

Mrs. David B. Edmonston, of Washington, addressed members of the Triangle Photographers Association last night in the Keystone Athletic Club, declaring superior photography and constant upbuilding of confidence among patrons is essential to business success of the studios.

Dr. Solon J. Buck, of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, also spoke. Technical and commercial demonstrations were given at an all-day meeting.

Follies Girl Again Sues Negro Mate

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—The latest divorce action of Helen Lee Worthing, former Follies girl, filed against Dr. Eugene C. Nelson, Negro physician, is to be contested, Dr. Nelson's attorney said today, by a petition for annulment.

Mrs. Worthing's complaint charged her husband was cruel and jealous, had a violent temper and made her a virtual prisoner in their two homes.

Drys Raid Tavern In Shaler Township

Sixty-two pints of whisky, 55 bottles of gin, two barrels of beer, two quarts of wine and 13 pints of ale, were reported confiscated by prohibition agents in a raid yesterday on the Hickey Park tavern, at Evergreen and Wible Run roads, Shaler Township. Two men were arrested.

Confiscation of 114 bottles of beer and 15 gallons of moonshine was reported in a dwelling in Washington avenue, Braddock.

RULES HEARING ON BONUS NEAR

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP.)—The veterans' cash bonus advocates soon will be given a hearing by the House Rules Committee on the Patman resolution seeking a preferred parliamentary status for the new-money redemption plan.

Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, appealed to the powerful Rules Committee after his bonus payment plan was rejected in a 15 to 10 Ways and Means Committee vote.

Approval by the Rules Committee of legislation defeated by another committee would be a departure from House precedents, but it is the only hope bonus sponsors have of getting a vote before the national conventions in June.

Wires Crossed, Auto Siren Wakes Sleepers

The shrill notes of an automobile siren aroused residents of the Wellesley avenue and Wellesley road districts early today. The cause of the disturbance was discovered by East End radio police, who said crossed wires were to blame. It took the radio crew 2 minutes to awaken the owner of the automobile, who slept through the commotion.

Woman Artist-Mother Wins 3 Nominations

Mrs. Anne E. Felix, artist and mother, of 204 Tennyson avenue, was returned victor on the Democratic ticket for three positions by the returning board today.

She was nominated for Congress in the Thirty-second District, state committeewoman in the Forty-third Senatorial District, and delegate-at-large to the national convention.

Mrs. Felix, practically unknown in politics, is an artist by profession. She maintains a studio in the Investment Trust Building.

Peter Conners was returned winner over William P. Gallagher in the fight for Republican State Committee in the Thirty-eighth District. Early returns indicated Gallagher the winner, but official figures reversed conditions and gave Connors an official lead of 192 votes.

A court fight will settle the Thirteenth Legislative District contest between former Representative Albert B. Davidson and William L. Brown for the second nomination. A hearing will be held May 23.

COUNCIL FLAYS GIRLS TO HOLD FINING SQUIRE AIR MEET

Aspinwall Council screens fining squire and fining constable as a result of the arrest of R. M. Stadtfeld, 1120 Macon street, Swissvale, on a Superior Court Judge Joseph Stadtfeld. The conduct of the office of Justice of the Peace R. N. Fyock, and the acts of W. R. Kennedy, constable working out of his office were explored.

Councilman A. H. Slate said:

"A fining squire and I don't know what kind of a constable are giving Aspinwall a black eye."

Burgess Lewis Hausmann said:

"I feel that the citizens of Aspinwall have been abused by the constables here. Our police department is above criticism."

To date Stadtfeld has not been summoned for a hearing of the charges on which he was chased and arrested on last Saturday morning, it is said, without liability and resisting an officer.

BRIDGE EXPERT FINDS SCIENCE LACKING HERE

Woman Talks on Methods Of Contract; Declares Auction Game Is Doomed

Pittsburghers should make good contract bridge players, but are behind other large cities in scientific knowledge of the game, according to Mrs. Aileen McCabe, associate of Ely Culbertson, here to give instructions in the principles of contract. She said:

Mrs. McCabe

"I am here to sow the seed of interest in scientific evaluation in bridge. Auction is doomed to oblivion. So is poker bidding. Psychic bids should never be made without an escape unit. Distribution of cards is just as important as aces and kings. Once the principles of contract are thoroughly understood, each time a bridge situation is faced their application becomes easier."

On Monday Mrs. McCabe lectured in Kaufmann's Auditorium on card valuation and no-trump bidding.

Yesterday her subject was suit bidding and suit raises. Today she was to discuss suit takeouts of the responding hand.

Tomorrow she will talk about opening two, three and four bids in a suit and responses. Friday she will discuss the defending hand and two or three hands on play, the grand coup, the squeeze play and elimination play. On Saturday her listeners will participate in a duplicate tournament, a method of play whereby hands are preserved intact in duplicate boards, the same hand being played by all players in the room.

Instead of finding bridge wearisome after long hours of lecture and instruction, Mrs. McCabe plays in her every leisure moment. She was official recorder during the Culbertson-Lenz match in New York recently, keeping track of the 48,000 cards played in the 75 rubbers at the Chatham Hotel and the 75 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. McCabe discussed the most freakish hand she ever played.

"My opponents were vulnerable. Three players passed. I was the fourth hand. I had honor strength for an opening two spade bid, but because my partner was a bit rash, I opened with one spade.

"My opponents bid up to five diamonds after two original passes. I doubled. Every ace and king in my hand was trumped. They had all the diamonds and a perfect cross ruff. They made a grand slam. Which proves the extreme importance of distribution."

The Making of an American
JOHN NANCE GARNER

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SPEAKER AND MRS. GARNER AT THEIR HOME IN UVALDE, TEX.

HOW does a boy find his place as a man?

By what dreams and schemes and contrivings does he bridge the gap between the vagueness of 16 and the virility of 30?

Do his people carry him over that gap, with expensive schooling and more expensive idling? Does he finally land, by pull or favor, because he's papa's tait-haited favorite?

Does he, on the other hand, play a lone hand, squirm his way along by tricks and shenannigans, wise-cracking and and side-steppings?

Or does he put over the job by his own honest thought and hard labor?

These are important questions—and extremely embarrassing, for some men. Many a figure who looms large in the public eye today does not welcome scrutiny of those transition years. Many an inflated reputation would go whistling if the record of those years were revealed.

For that is the crucial time in a man's life. He may acquire fancy gestures thereafter, but under pressure he will always revert to the rules he made for himself during those first, fighting days.

Never bank on a man or vote for a man unless you know how he played the game before he was 30.

But maybe he made mistakes? Of course he did. But what lay behind the mistakes? How was he sizing things up—himself and life? What sort of a bargain was he trying to strike between himself and life?

What sort of a bargain did John Nance Garner make?

CHAPTER THREE

HE WANTED OUT

A raw boy in a raw land: what sort of a bargain could he make with life?

A land that was still almost wilderness, largely without railroads, highways, factories, great cities, accessible schools? Given a combination like that, and the land usually wins.

The land won with most of the Texas youngsters who played on the Blossom Coon Soup Hollow Baseball Team in the 70's. Opportunity might lie beyond the border, but the border was a long way off—too far for limping feet and lagging imaginations to reach. Easier to stay on the land, serving the soil. Most of them stayed.

Jack Garner stayed, for a while; stayed and did the things his fathers had done before him. Dug, yanked, pounded a living out of the soil. Ploughed, sowed, reaped, salted stock, branded calves, strung and rode scores of miles of fence line. Rooted himself with his crops, deeper and deeper into the soil.

Then, having gotten root, he began to head up and out. Began to get ideas.

Ideas? What use were they on wilderness acres? Not much use if he was going to stay on wilderness acres. But was he?

The old, old question that every boy asks of life!

Slowly, as he rode miles of barbed wire fence under the blazing sun, as he ploughed miles of earth under the stinging cold, young John Garner began to question life; began to bargain with life.

Tackles Books
Determines on Career In Outside World

A raw boy in a raw land; a penniless boy, without power or place. Nothing to bargain with except his bare fists and that notion sprouting in his brain. But he bargained! As he had dug and pounded and yanked a living out of bare, barren soil, so now he began to dig and pound and yank a career out of thin air.

He had had schooling of a sort. Little Red School House schooling. Three R's, with a six-mile trudge each day to get it. To be frank, he hadn't hurried over those miles. He wasn't hungry for "learnin'", per se. Books were all right, but it was what a fellow could do with books that really mattered.

What could he do with books, if he took them seriously? Would they take him away from fence-riding, out beyond the corrals, across the boundary into that world he had never seen?

James Walpole, his father's cousin, told him he could do a lot with books. James Walpole was a pale scholarly man, wore black suits and a white collar; had long hands, shaped to old calfskin bindings.

The boy standing before him listened, his head cocked a little to one side, had rough fists shaped to plow handles, branding irons and lasso ropes. His skin was wind red, his legs bowed to the belly of a horse, his clothes baggy and weather-beaten. But his sharp blue eyes were already leaping far beyond a cowboy's horizon.

So he tackled books. Hated them, but hung on. Hung on as he had hung on at 15 to the plunging, jerking plough handles. Set ideas ripping into his raw mind, as he'd set the plough share ripping into the wild soil.

Fight to Learn
Educates Self Despite Long Hours in Saddle

A raw boy, educating himself between chores. Something different than the pre-arranged, pre-digested college course of the average statesman. Ever fight to keep your head thinking after 10, 12 hours in the saddle rounding up a bunch of mavericks? John Garner fought like that, grimly, without enthusiasm. He still had no stomach for culture, as such.

But he wanted—out!

Sixteen. 17. 18. He was creeping across the gap of the years, bargaining as he went; bargaining in the dark, for he still didn't know where he was going—but he was on his way!

Bargaining for time. Bargaining for strength, and endurance. Didn't even have health in those days. The kid scrawniness was edging toward something worse. There was a cough; limp hours when he swayed in the saddle, clammy cold, even under the pounding heat. One doctor said T. B.

But Jack Garner wouldn't listen. He was on his way. Nothing should stop him. Poverty, ignorance, obscurity, dangerous illness—nothing should stop him. Day after day he fought on, saved an hour here, a dollar there. Every day his sharp eyes looked a little further beyond that barbed wire horizon. Every week his stiff, chapped fingers counted a larger hoard—the price of freedom.

One day he took off his chaps and spurs, hung up his saddle, changed into his badly cut best pants, his ugly store shirt. He had wanted—out. He was going out now, ready for his first try at that world beyond the corrals.

Not a very far try, nor a long one. Only one term at Vanderbilt University, in Tennessee. But the break had been made. He had made his start.

Turns to Law
Makes Own Opportunity, Strives to Success

Back home after that. Outwardly triumphant. Inwardly up a tree. For, where did he go from here?

Opportunity knocks for some folks. Other folks have to make it. Jack Garner always had to make his opportunities, mostly out of sheer nerve and impudence. He proceeded to make one now.

One thing he'd always been good at—beating the other fellow in an argument. He'd done it with his bare fists, back in those Blossom Coon Soup Hollow Baseball days, when he whaled the tar outta any rival 'Possum Trotter who dared dispute his supremacy.

But he couldn't go on bare fisting it through life. There was a way, however—a legal way—to always be in a scrap, and maybe win it. He could be a lawyer. Very well, he would be a lawyer.

Back he went to books. A private law firm, this time—Sims & Wright, of Clarksville, Tex.

Stubborn, tough figure sticking on an office chair as once it had stuck on a saddle. No spurs on his heels now, but plenty of them on his mind, rowelling him on through God knows what weariness and disscouragement. Still that empty pocket. Still that cough, shaking the lean young body. Still no definite chance ahead. But—

He wanted—out!

And he made—out! Made it by another one of those catch-as-catch-can opportunities.

Elected at 20
Casts First Vote, Wins As County Attorney

He was 20. By dint of playing semi-pro baseball and doing odd jobs he had acquired enough cash to accumulate enough law to pass the not too exacting bar exams of that day. He was rarin' to go, but his youth still held him back. He wouldn't legally be a man for another year.

There was, however, a special Texas statute under which a minor might "have his disabilities removed" if he could convince the County Court that he had the qualifications necessary for full-fledged citizenship. As a convincer, young Jack Garner had unique talents. Why let a little matter like 12 months stand in his way if he could talk himself out of them?

He could—and did.

Still 20, he cast his first vote for himself as County Attorney—and won!

Not without opposition, however. The solid citizens quite naturally regarded him as an impertinent young pup and snorted at his aspirations. But, to a man, every baseball player, livery stable owner, saloon keeper, cowboy, farm hand and general roustabout voted for him. And the regular guys carried the day.

Whereupon, there was a great hoisting of steins in the local bars to celebrate his victory, in which the new County Attorney joined enthusiastically. But, having done so, he proceeded to get professional—pronto, and plenty!

The saloon keepers had elected him, but neither they nor any other outfit were going to own him. It was his duty to administer law. He would administer it—regardless.

In convention assembled, with his ungrateful elbow resting upon one of their own bars, he informed the big boys that they had better pay more heed to the Sunday closing law. Aghast and indignant they desired to know how he got that way, and reminded him of favors offered and received. Moreover, how could they lock up on Sunday when they had no keys? A locked saloon was unheard of!

They were hearing of it now, said Attorney Garner. And if they didn't have keys, they'd better make some.

As he said it, he grinned. Reluctantly they grinned back. But they got those keys. And they locked those saloons.

He was 20. He had a vote. He had an office. But his greatest tangible asset, as yet, were grit and grin.

How far would they take him? They had brought him pretty far, already. And they were to take him further—fast.

Youthful Convict Discloses Buried Nitroglycerine

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 11.—(AP.)—Fearful that road building machinery would dig up and explode his cache of nitroglycerine, and kill or injure road workers, an 18-year-old convict led highway patrolmen to the explosive, it was disclosed today.

The youth read in Moberly newspapers recently that construction crews were working in the vicinity where he had buried a bottle of the explosive.

Closely guarded, the youth was taken from the Missouri Penitentiary, and he directed officers to the nitroglycerine. The convict, Thurman Roberts, said he found the explosive in an automobile he had stolen from a partner.

Kicked by Mule, Soldier Denied Decoration

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(INS.)—A soldier kicked by an Army mule, or even by an enemy's mule, is not necessarily entitled to a decoration for wounds. The War Department has ruled that an applicant for the "purple heart" decoration must have been wounded by bullets.

A veteran of the Spanish-American War applied for the "purple heart" award. His arm had been broken by an enemy mule which he captured in the Porto Rican campaign and he considered this equivalent to a wound in action. But the department refused.

COX GRATEFUL FOR CHECK

Father Cox was given a check for $150 yesterday as the first installment of his commissions earned in the Father Cox Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Drive. The "father of the jobless" was immensely pleased with the early results of the campaign, he said.

Father Cox

"The funds I am going to get from this campaign are coming at a time when they are more urgently needed than ever. Many of the relief organizations acknowledge that they are getting near to the end of their rope. This means that hundreds more, on top of the hundreds now being helped, will come to me for food and clothing. It looks as though the Sun-Telegraph is doing its share in solving the problem of the near future, and I want to personally thank every subscriber who has helped me in this manner."

In the meantime the Father Cox Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Drive, by which this friend to the needy gets a liberal commission for every new order for the delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, is going along with gratifying results.

The funds thus secured will help to feed from 2,500 to 3,000 unfortunates in his daily breadline at Old St. Patrick's and will also help to furnish baskets of food for hundreds of Pittsburgh families in distress.

If you wish to help Father Cox send in your order either to Father Cox or to the Sun-Telegraph. Mail it today, and your Sun-Telegraph will start tomorrow.

George Washington Masonic Memorial Dedication On WCAE Tomorrow

The elaborate ceremonies marking the dedication of the new George Washington Memorial at Alexandria, Va., erected by the Masons of America at a cost of $5,000,000, will be broadcast over a nation-wide NBC network including WCAE for an hour and 45 minutes tomorrow, beginning at 1:45 p. m.

In a special ritual, the grand masters of the 13 original states, including Benjamin Page, of Pittsburgh, grand master of the grand lodge of Pennsylvania, will give responses relating to Washington's association with their states. President Hoover will be the guest of honor, but will not speak. Melvin M. Johnson, of Boston, past grand master of Massachusetts, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Mr. Page

Upon the arrival of President Hoover the grand masters of Masonic lodges throughout this country and abroad will emerge from the temple bearing Masonic relics of the first President, who presided over the meetings of Alexandria lodge, now Washington-Alexandria No. 22, and as its grand master laid the cornerstone of the National Capitol. A presidential salute of 21 guns fired from naval vessels in the Potomac also will be heard.

"Romance in Real Estate" is the topic of a radio talk by J. P. Lohman, real estate editor of the New York American, on WJAS today at 5:15 during the "Going to Press" broadcast.

James F. Hillman, vice president of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company, is guest speaker during the musical program by the String Choir tonight at 8 on KDKA.

Two international rebroadcasts scheduled late yesterday by the NBC will bring the choir of the North American College in Rome to the WCAE audience between 4 and 4:30 this afternoon, and the second annual banquet of the Bank of International Settlement from Switzerland at 5:45. Gates W. McGarrah, president, will be the speaker.

Miss Elsie Hoewischer, director of personnel for Boggs and Buhl, is interviewed by David Patterson on KQV at 7:45.

Earl Sande

The University of Pittsburgh Glee Club, of 50 voices, under the direction of Dr. W. H. Wright, presents a half-hour program from WCAE at 10:30.

Fan Fare

When Rudy Neubauer, cashier at NBC's Chicago studios, hears a contralto voice dripping "St. Louis Blues" at his window, he can be sure it's Jane Froman calling for her pay check . . . Rudy says he sees the artists in their most expansive moods . . . Ted Husing suffered an attack of appendicitis during the Kentucky Derby and is back in New York preparing for a possible operation . . . Ben Bernie's contract has been renewed for his broadcasts over WABC-CBS.

Miss Froman

WABC's recent poll shows that listeners favor the old favorites in preference to jazz. "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was nominated for first place.

Ely Culbertson has written a book on Bolshevism, which is to be published this summer. Before he turned to bridge, Culbertson was a teacher of economics in European universities.

Shields' Political Review on WCAE

The comments of Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, on political activities throughout the nation are heard from WCAE tonight at 6. Mr. Shields is wiring his review from Harrisburg and it will be read by one of his associates.

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, presents his Trained Seals program from WCAE tonight at 6:30. Art Shires, Rabbit Maranville and Johnny Evers, of the Boston Braves, are interviewed by Charles J. Doyle, Sun-Telegraph baseball writer. Football is discussed by Bob Waddell and Elmer Layden, football coaches at Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University respectively, and Edward D. Seitz, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, tells how a court may be built and maintained at a moderate cost when he is interviewed by Paul G. Sullivan.

A group of talented Pittsburgh kiddies are brought to the WCAE microphone today at 4:45 to present a program for the children during the "Sun - Telegraph Family" broadcast.

An unusual talk of special interest to women is heard on WCAE tomorrow morning at 10:30, when Madelon gives her "Reflections of Madelon's Mirror" program.

FALL PREDICTS VINDICATION

THREE RIVERS, N. M., May 11.—(AP)—Time would vindicate the Naval oil reserve plans he made while Secretary of the Interior, Albert B. Fall declared at his ranch home here after his release from New Mexico State Penitentiary. Propped up in bed, he received a reporter yesterday and made his first public utterance in nearly a year, saying:

"My children and my grandchildren will live to see the day when my judgment will be vindicated."

Referring to his experience in prison, he said:

"There were many funny things about my stay there. I was to be treated like all other federal prisoners. There was only one other federal prisoner, a Navajo serving a sentence for horse stealing.

"I have paid my debt to society and I'm glad to be out. Everything will come out in the washing. Let time wipe out the bitterness and differences."

CAMPAIGN AIDS 5,439 HOMES

Final reports of workers in the Family-Help-Family campaign revealed 5,439 families of the 28,000 for whom assistance was sought have been cared for by contributions in the campaign. At yesterday's meeting 383 additional families were reported.

Included in the reports yesterday was a contribution for $6,053 from the Twentieth Century Club and $5,000 from an individual. While there are to be no further report meetings, the work of solicitation will continue.

It was revealed at yesterday's meeting that each of the children at the Industrial Home for Crippled Children donated 5 cents and the home employes gave a day's pay.

The Curtis Home on the North Side reported it would shelter 10 girls between the ages of 4 and 14, and the Protestant Orphan Asylum offered to take 100 children from infancy to the age of 15.

Sacred Heart High Offers Scholarships

CUSTOMS UNIT TO REMAIN

According to demands of Pittsburgh business interests, the Pittsburgh Customs office will not be closed by the government, Congressman Edmund F. Erk advised the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce in a telegram today.

Congressman Erk wired:

"Obtained assurance that the Pittsburgh customs office will not be abandoned regardless of 10 per cent cut in Treasury Department appropriation ordered by Senate. If reduction of appropriation should be approved it is intended to place Pittsburgh office under supervision of Philadelphia and furlough only six of the personnel. Office would remain in charge of assistant collector and about 15 assistants."

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Work Needed for Happiness And Development

Are wives people? Have they a right to work away from home, even if the big boy can "support" them?

Or is it just "vicious greed" when they do?

Plenty of people have told us lately that that was it—just greed.

"No family," so they insisted, "has any right to a bigger and better income than John Henry can bring home by himself; and any woman who wants one is just a hog!"

Do you believe that? Then listen while Delmar makes a few snappy remarks on the subject, and tell us what you think of them and him.

"Dear Miss Martin—

"Please, may I say a word or two in this discussion as to whether or not a woman has a right to work outside her home, even if she has a husband who can and does support her?

"I believe that she has.

"Some years ago we decided that women were people. They were given the right to vote, and it was recognized that they were human beings and really had a place in life, like the other half of humanity.

"They didn't choose their sex. It was wished on them. They have proved to the world that they are able to assume responsibility.

A NECESSITY

"Why take that responsibility, that work, that privilege of managing their own lives away from them, just because they may have married some man who maybe can pay their bills?

"Work is necessary—very necessary—for all people, if they're going to stay healthy; and that means women and children, as well as men. It is not merely a means of making money, necessary as that may be at times. It also makes it possible for us to make our fullest and best contribution to the happiness and welfare of society.

"Work at something we can feel a satisfaction in is very necessary for our development. If the race is to go forward we must all of us be active in some kind of constructive work—work that does good, and satisfies us.

"I, for one, am glad to see that women, as well as men, can and do direct their own lives and take their full share of responsibility outside the home as well as in it.

SHOULD HAVE OPPORTUNITY

"The place where any person works should depend on ability, whether that person is married or single. Every person should have the opportunity not only to work, but to work in a place that brings happiness and contentment, and where they can make their largest and best contribution to the welfare of mankind.

"There is something radically wrong with our civilization when all the people cannot find honest work of some kind to do. That must be changed. Why not get busy now changing it, instead of trying to make women give up the rights they have won with such difficulty? Why try to make them the goats? Every man or woman, married or single, must be given an opportunity to work at a fair, reasonable wage. DELMAR."

Good work, Delmar! It's time we quit bawling women out for wanting to work, and get busy making a chance for everyone to work.

Forget the Past and Build for the Future, Sage Advice of Fay King

By FAY KING

No matter what your place in life may be you must make the most of it. You are in a rut if you do not.

One can always move forward, in mind if not in material ways.

Most of the discontent in life is due to those idle moments when one sits around moping or mulling over matters that are gone and done with.

Yesterday is gone forever, and if it has been unfortunate the lesson it teaches is valuable.

Forget the Past and build from Now.

Each day that dawns is a new beginning for the world.

It is within our power to make it a better day by improving a little ourselves.

The present is all that belongs to any of us.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diabetes Is Not Curable, but It Can Be Controlled

Until a few years ago diabetes was considered a hopeless disease. Today our understanding of diabetes has increased remarkably. This is particularly true with reference to the management of the diet and the use of "insulin." Complications such as coma, gangrene and infections, which formerly were fatal, are now rarely encountered.

Dr. Copeland

In diabetes, there is a lack of a certain necessary bodily secretion. Due to this deficiency the body is unable to take care of sugar. In consequence sugar accumulates within the body and causes serious damage to the internal organs.

Usually this condition can be corrected by diet. Where diet alone is not sufficient insulin is given.

The discovery of insulin is one of the greatest achievements of modern science. Insulin supplies the necessary substance which is lacking in the body of the diabetic. Contrary to a common belief insulin does not cure diabetes. It controls the disease. The diet, however, is important, and must not be neglected even when insulin is given.

Since insulin is a powerful drug, it cannot be taken carelessly. It must be used under the personal supervision of a physician.

Many persons suffering from diabetes are misled by false statements and the claims made for patent medicines. The victim is promptly attracted to any remedy that offers a quick cure, and the number of patent medicines, herbs, salts and mineral waters which are advocated for the cure of diabetes is overwhelming.

Frankly, there is no medicine known to mankind that will cure diabetes. The disease can be successfully controlled only by proper diet and the correct use of insulin. Neglect of the diet or failure to follow instructions is dangerous.

Insulin can be given only by hypodermic injections. No satisfactory method of giving insulin by mouth has been perfected, although much research in this direction is under way.

Since no two cases are alike it is difficult to prescribe a definite diet. The food intake is governed by the amount of sugar present in the urine and blood. This also determines the amount of insulin that is necessary.

Every individual should have a urine analysis every six months. If sugar is present in the urine an immediate blood test should be made. If your condition is diagnosed as diabetes, place yourself under the care of a physician or enroll in a diabetic clinic. Avoid "sure cures" and well-intentioned but unscientific advice.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The 'Continent'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column is the first I turn to in the paper, and I always find something of interest to me.

Will you please give me a word of advice?

1. A friend (who or whom?) has enjoyed a vacation in Europe (France and Italy) told of things she did on the Continent. In England one speaks of the Continent, but is it correct when one is in the United States?

2. Also, is it correct to mail a card of greeting to a friend and say "Compliments from Mary?" D.

Thank you for your kind words! And welcome to the column.

1. (A friend who has enjoyed a vacation is the correct form, the relative pronoun who being the subject of the clause, and therefore in the nominative case.)

Since it has become so much the custom to speak of "the Continent," one may do this with propriety, since it is perfectly clear what one means . . . France, Italy, Germany and so forth. In distinction to England, Ireland, Scotland.

2. Yes, this is correct. It is a bit stilted, I think, but on the other hand it has an old-fashioned flavor that is very attractive. We probably would not use this form when we send a message or card to a close friend, but if, say, a courtly person would send such a greeting, it would probably carry the flavor of that courtliness and gallantry.

Famous or Popular

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have noticed in the paper that the Lindbergh baby is called "The world's most famous baby." Can you tell me if the word famous is used properly there or would you say popular baby?

2. Is it correct to address a letter to an aunt as "Dear Aunt Celia" or would "Dear Celia" be sufficient? E. A.

1. "Famous" would, I think, be the better word here, since this would connote the fact that the baby is known about the world over, while "popular" carries with it more the suggestion of actually being known.

2. "Dear Aunt Celia" should be used when this is the relationship, unless in some cases when the aunt and her niece or nephew are of such a near age that they agree to drop the "aunt."

Finger Bowls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please be kind enough to settle a question that has caused much confusion in my mind. When finger bowls are served is it obligatory to use them?

CONSTANT READER OF YOUR COLUMN.

No, it is not at all obligatory to use finger bowls. Use them only if you wish . . . or if you need to.

Improved Footwear

Women are getting bigger and better feet, so the shoe manufacturers say. The change from the cute little Cinderellas to proper-sized pedals is due to the growing popularity of outdoor sports. Well, the sisters are stepping forward more credit to them. Some day the fragile piked heel will disappear completely.

End Play Problems

The above seemingly impossible but really beautifully simple problem is by the late Prof. W. H. Whitfeld, former professor of mathematics at Oxford University and the greatest card authority of his generation. There are very few new card problems to offer.

The problem is: hearts are trumps. Z is to lead. How can Y-Z win six of the seven possible tricks against the best play of A-B?

The play must go as follows: Z leads and Y trumps the K of diamonds. Y leads back the Q of spades. If B wins with his Ace, he must lead back either a losing spade or a diamond. If the spade is led, Y's 8 will win the trick. Y can then return his 9 of spades, overtake with Z's 10, and run off the K, to provide a discard of Y's losing club. After that Y will trump a diamond lead from dummy, then lay down his last trump for the seventh trick, of which his side has won six. If, instead of leading back a spade, B leads a small diamond, that affords an immediate discard for Y's losing club. If B leads his Ace of diamonds, Y can trump, thus winning his second trick. In dummy will be found three winning spades and one winning diamond, giving Y-Z their six tricks.

Normal action by B is as follows: When Y leads back his first spade, B will not put up his Ace; it appears too hopeless. Then Y's Q must be overtaken with Z's K. A diamond must be led back, and trumped by Y. Y must lead back his 9 of spades, if B fails to put up his Ace. Z's 10 will win the trick. Z's last diamond will be led, and trumped with Y's last heart. Y's last spade will be led. If B wins the trick, he will have to lead back a losing spade for Z to win. If B declines to put up his Ace when Y makes his third lead of spades, that will give Y-Z their six tricks. The last trick will go to A's K of clubs. In no way can A-B prevent Y-Z from winning six tricks.

Hearts are trumps. Y is to lead. How many tricks can be won against A-B? The answer will appear next week.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

They're yeasting their faces. Dissolve a yeast cake in water, spread the thick liquid over the complexion. They say that yeast goes into pores and drags out blackheads. We dunno. But it might be fun to make a test.

Powder pads, combs, brushes, all toilet articles should be kept in dustproof containers. The expensive comb and brush may look grand and ornamental laid out on the dressing table, but that's no place for them, at least not if they are to see daily service.

What a woman can do in the way of tracking lines in her face is plenty, if not more than that. The habit of lifting the eyebrows with every question digs furrows across the forehead. Nobody has to be told what frowning does, and those special tissue ditches are not easy to eradicate when once they are established. Squinting is the mother of turkey tracks and crow's feet. Pulling down the mouth corners makes small facial fibers go lax, sends out an invitation for the extra chin to come and be a homesteader. Face gestures are all to the bad. Let the eyes furnish expression.

GUILTY OF WELL MURDER PLOT

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—(AP.)—Convicted of the attempted murder of a young girl, Frank Newland Jr., young Pomona married man was held in the county jail today awaiting sentence Friday.

Newland's golf caddy was convicted of throwing Lois Wade into an abandoned well after she had pleaded with him to divorce his wife and marry her so that her unborn child might have a name.

Deputy District Attorney Grant Cooper quoted from the novel "The American Tragedy" in opposing the defense contention Newland was insane when he made love to Miss Wade. He said:

"It has happened a million times before and will probably happen a million times again."

Newland also was convicted of an offense against a minor and will be sentenced on that charge also. The charge resulted from his relations with Miss Wade.

TINY TENDER LEAVES of "spicy" fragrance

. . . Turkish tobacco is very different from Domestic. The leaf is much smaller. But the greatest difference is in the taste—the aromatic richness and spicy fragrance that no other tobacco in the world can supply.

In Chesterfields we use the four Turkish types which tobacco men value most—Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun.

And we use just the right amount of each. Turkish tobacco, you perhaps know, must be blended with Domestic to get the best results.

If you smoke Chesterfields, no doubt you've noticed an extra richness of aroma . . . an added delicacy of taste. This is due in part to just the right amount of Turkish leaf. It is what seasoning is to food—the spice, the sauce. It is just another reason why Chesterfields taste better. And why They Satisfy.

Every Home Can Afford One

● Now that careful buying has become so popular, it's time to get good electric refrigeration.

And once it's in your home you'll wonder how you ever managed without it. You'll like the way it freezes ice . . . and you'll discover a brand-new thrill in creating appetizing frozen salads and desserts in the freezing trays that make your ice.

All foods are kept more healthful and wholesome in the cold, dry atmosphere of an electric refrigerator . . . Vegetables keep crisp and fresh for days. Milk and cream remain healthful and safe to drink longer.

Perhaps you are aware of all this . . . and have been holding back because of cost.

If so, please note this fact. It costs so little to own an electric refrigerator that every home can afford one . . . food purchased in quantity costs less . . . and food spoilage is practically eliminated. Any dealer will be glad to prove this . . . in just five minutes.

Make up your mind to enjoy the benefits of a good electric refrigerator . . . and the savings that go with it. Call at your nearest dealer's soon. The model you prefer is yours for a down payment so small you'll scarcely miss it.

RIVERMAN HELD IN SHOOTING

A shooting affray on the north bank of the Allegheny River, resulted in Andrew Huber, 63, who lives in a houseboat near the Sixth Street Bridge, being held for court after a hearing in North Side Police Court today.

Charles Snyder, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad policeman, told Magistrate Ray E. Schneider, that, on April 16, he had ordered Huber, intoxicated, to get off the railroad property and that Huber had returned with a gun and opened fire.

Snyder returned the fire and in the exchange two women, Mrs. Frances Walters, 53, and her daughter, Mrs. Nancy Ross, 23, both of 8 Federal street, were shot.

It was not proven whose shots wounded the woman and Huber was held for court on charges of carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms.

RIPLEY SEARCH ON IN EARNEST

'Believe It or Not' Contest Topic Everywhere

The Ripley "Believe It or Not" hunt is on in earnest. It is the topic for discussion in the homes, the schools, the offices, the stores, among street car and railway employes and everywhere you go. Everyone seems to be searching for unbelievable facts to send to Ripley. It looks as though the readers of the Sun-Telegraph are going to beat Rip at his own game.

The prize list in the national "Believe It or Not" contest is raising a lot of questions in the minds of readers.

CHOOSE OWN PRIZES

Contestants will be pleased to know that winners of the grand prizes will pick their own prizes in the following fashion:

The winner of the national contest gets his (or her) choice of all the nine prizes; the second prize winner will have his or her choice of the remaining eight, and so on until all the prizes have been awarded.

To help Ripley out the Sun-Telegraph is offering 10 daily prizes for the best "Believe-It-or-Nots" sent us each day until May 16. You'll find today's list of winners on this page. The contributions that win these daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the amazing grand prizes which are listed in another column.

RIPLEY TO JUDGE

Winners of daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the grand prizes. Rip will pick his grand prize winners for the daily victors.

You may have incredibilities from your private stock that beat many that have been mentioned. But hustle and send them in so that they can be considered for the daily awards which will be continued daily until May 16. Send one in today. If you get a better one later you may enter that too. The more the merrier.

Write legibly on one side of the paper only and add any explanation or proof necessary to make it believable. It must be true to win an award. Just address it to the "Believe It Or Not Editor" of the Sun-Telegraph.

Contest Rules

1. You may submit as many "Believe It or Nots" as you wish. You do not have to submit any drawings or sketches. Write legibly on one side of the paper. Have your name and address on each sheet of paper if you send in more than one. Each entry must contain the explanation or proof of its truth. The Sun-Telegraph will not be responsible for the return of entries.

2. Contributions will be judged daily for the local prizes. No contribution will be considered which is mailed after midnight, May 16.

3. The contestant agrees to accept the judgment of the Sun-Telegraph in the awarding of the daily prizes. Only contributions winning daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the grand prize. The contestant agrees to accept Mr. Ripley's judgment on the grand prize winners as final. Nine grand prize winners will be named in the order of the merit of his or her contribution. The first prize winner will have first choice of the nine grand prizes; the second prize winner will have his choice of the remaining eight prizes, and so on, until the grand prizes are all taken.

4. In case of ties the same prizes will be awarded to all tying contestants.

5. You do not have to buy the Sun-Telegraph to compete in this contest. Files of the Sun-Telegraph may be found at the public library or at the office of the Sun-Telegraph, where the drawings of Mr. Ripley and the instructions of the contest may be consulted.

Constable's Murder Baffles Detectives

The murder of Vernon (Port) Moses, Ross Township constable, is destined for the files of other unsolved county crimes, county detectives admitted today.

Failure to obtain a clue to the identity of the killers with whom Moses had been arguing or the license number of their automobile from George Lai, of 535 William Penn way, a witness, dimmed the detectives' hope of solving the crime. The murder occurred May 3 in Perrysville road near the Keating car barn.

EX-BANK AIDE PLEADS GUILTY

Bernard A. Friedman, 32, former assistant cashier of the now closed Pennsylvania Deposit Bank, of McKeesport, today pleaded guilty in Criminal Court to 10 charges of embezzlement, involving $16,500 of the bank's money.

Judge Elder W. Marshall postponed sentence upon request of the bonding company which had covered Friedman, to allow it time to make arrangements for partial restitution.

Attorneys for Friedman asked for leniency, pointing out that his father, Henry Friedman, president of the bank, already had given a $43,000 judgment against his personal property to partially protect the depositors and stockholders and that an aunt had pledged a judgment against her property in case her nephew was paroled.

The bank had a large foreign clientele, mostly laborers in the steel plants.

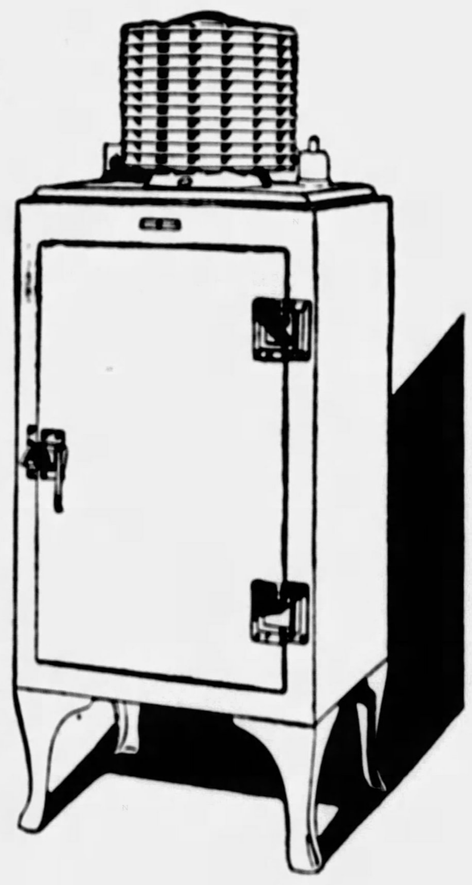
All Right—
Let's Talk Price

Certainly—buy economical refrigeration . . . but, the only real "BARGAIN" in electric refrigeration is uninterrupted service over a period of years. So—LOW first price is NOT Low cost.



•

ONLY the General Electric Refrigerator has the modern Monitor Top mechanism—with every moving part completely sealed-in-steel. It looks different—it is designed differently—it performs differently!

Fifteen years were spent in developing this radically different mechanical unit. General Electric's engineers recognized that the mechanism is the most important part of any refrigerator—that when the mechanism fails, refrigeration ceases; repair bills commence.

Your General Electric Refrigerator requires no attention—not even oiling. Its operation cannot be affected by neglect, for there is nothing to neglect. Neither air, dust, moisture, nor tampering fingers can harm the compact mechanical unit—it's all sealed-in-steel.

In well over a million and a quarter homes, the General Electric has established an unparalleled record of attention-free, expense-free service. No other refrigerator can serve you longer without interruption or service expense than you know the General Electric will.

Look to the mechanism before you buy any refrigerator. Look to its record in actual kitchen service. Buy the one that has proved itself to operate longest without care or attention. $10 down delivers a full-sized General Electric to your home tomorrow. Choose your model today.

PINCHOT JOINS RELIEF HEADS' PLEA FOR U. S. AID

Sheriff in Drive to Collect Court Costs

$3,000 OWING COUNTY SINCE JANUARY

Most of Sum Due on Vote Trials; Riordan, O'Malley Fight on Payment Seen

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar today announced he would take immediate steps, through serving of processes, to collect unpaid court costs totaling more than $3,000, which have accumulated since January 1.

Many of the costs involved are in connection with trials which grew out of the investigation of vote frauds in the September primary election of last year. Chief among them are:

1—More than $2,500 against Leo Riordan, a private investigator employed by the Independent faction of the Republican party to prevent or trace vote frauds.

2—$534.60 against Patrick J. O'Malley, Republican leader in the Second Ward, and three co-defendants, acquitted in a vote conspiracy trial, February 26, and $41.30 against O'Malley, acquitted at the same time of charges of paying poll taxes unlawfully.

3—$42 against Mrs. J. O. Miller, president of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, as a result of charges she brought against former County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong in 1928, which were ignored when presented to the grand jury.

When O'Malley, William Gallagher, Michael McMacklin and James Lardo were acquitted of the vote conspiracy charges, Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford County, placed the costs, $534.60, on them, to be shared equally—$133.65 each. The other three were not involved in the illegal payment of poll tax trial and the cost of it, therefore, was placed on O'Malley alone.

COLL TO OBJECT

At that time Attorney Edward G. Coll, representing O'Malley, requested his client be given time in which to pay. Judge Culver granted 10 days. Now, Sheriff Gollmar said, with payment long overdue, Coll has informed him that he will file objections to certain of the costs but cannot do so until the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline, in Butler, terminates.

Gollmar said Coll would be given until next week to file his objections and added:

"I know he will pay whatever is determined correct."

Riordan's costs were amassed through the collapse before the courts of many cases he presented of alleged vote frauds in McKees Rocks, Homestead and other solidly "Regular Republican" districts. When the defendants were acquitted the costs were placed upon him as the prosecutor.

Gollmer said the Miller costs would be referred to District Attorney Andrew T. Park when he returns from the Kline trial, as the fact that the grand jury ignored the case places it under his jurisdiction rather than that of the court where the others through coming to trial, lie.

Two Held for Court In Uptown Holdup

Alleged to have held up Joseph Alton, proprietor of a restaurant at 1424 Fifth avenue, yesterday, Henry and Alfred Goltsman, brothers, of 2216 Forbes street, were held for court at a hearing this morning before Magistrate James J. O'Connor in Center Avenue Police Court. Alton, beaten on the head by one of the robbers, identified the brothers. One hundred fifty-five dollars of the $200 taken from Alton was found, police say, on Alfred Goltsman.

Cost of Girls' 20-Cent Experimental Diet Cut

Reduced Nearly 3 Cents for 2 Days By Instructor

The Carnegie Tech "economy" diet of of 20 cents a day per person, upon which five girl students of the school's department of household economics started to live Monday, will be nearly three cents under the allotment during the next two days. This was revealed today by Miss Harriet P. Glendon, head of the department, in giving out the market list for the two days.

Already, the experiment of the five girls has brought many requests from their fellow students who are eager to inaugurate similar studies of their own, for the practical experience it provides for preparing economical diets.

In preparing their menus, the girls have avoided the use of foods with low vitamin content, whenever possible. One such food is white rice as a cereal, avoided because the high polish of white rice causes it to lose its vitamins and mineral salts, according to Miss Glendon.

Today's menus follow:

BREAKFAST

Sliced oranges (small serving), milk toast, using graham bread spread with grape jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON

DINNER

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Poor Mr. Meilon is just finding out what an ambassador's business in England is. It's to introduce American mothers' daughters to the king and queen. You ought to hear Charley Dawes tell about his experiences with those ferocious mothers. They try everything from bribery to blackmail, and politics to poison. They drove poor Charley pretty near "nutty." I doubt if a charging elephant, or a rhino, is as determined or hard to check as a socially ambitious mother. I see there is just as many this years. Even depression can't stop 'em. Don't you envy "Andy," "Charley?"

Yours, WILL.

MISS ALTHEA ROBINSON "UP" ON STRIKEAWAY . . . . . HE RECOVERED MIRACULOUSLY

INJURED HORSE HURDLES AGAIN

"Strikeaway," a valuable horse owned by W. C. Robinson, Jr., of Sewickley Heights, is, according to George Chubb, head of the Allegheny Country Club stables, the only horse in history to have so far recovered from a severed leg tendon as to be able to canter and take the hurdles again.

"Strikeaway" had the tendon on his left foreleg severed by a wire on the hunting field in November.

While being treated for the injury, he developed pneumonia, which lasted 14 days.

Under the care of Dr. Charles W. Boyd, of Sewickley, the horse recovered from the pneumonia and gradually regained the normal use of his leg. Chubb said, until today he trots without a limp.

"Strikeaway," rejuvenated, will be entered in the Allegheny Country Club horse show, June 2, 3 and 4. His owner is chairman of the show's executive committee.

Congress at Last Learns America Will Fight For Prosperity

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1932, by San Francisco Examiner and Universal Service, Inc.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Good news—fine news—glad tidings of great joy.

The nightmare of self-deception of stupid shut your eyes and you won't see it policy.

And the nightmare of "never mind what happens to my neighbor so long as I'm all right myself" frame of mind.

Every doctor knows that in every serious malady there comes a time of stupor—when the patient sinks into a kind of coma that is almost death itself.

If that coma lasts too long—it is time to order the coffin.

But if the patient stirs in his sleep, speaks or even tries to smile—hope stirs again and all the family begins to look for good news.

The world is sick just now—most of it, and America, our own brave, hopeful, beautiful, rich powerful America, has been sick, too.

AMERICA WAKES UP

But the turn in the tide of the malady of despondency and despair and hopelessness has come.

America is waking up—at last.

Did you see the news from Washington in yesterday's paper?

Have you read the news this morning?

Don't let anything keep you from reading it—it will put new life and new hope and new courage into your heart.

Congress is not going to adjourn until something real and vital and practical is done to put this nation on the high road to vigorous, splendid health again.

There are two bills before Congress—both providing that the federal government step into the breach and provide the money for big building programs that will give work to more than a million men, and give it to them immediately.

SENATE STOPS PLAYING

The Senate has stopped playing politics and is hearing a few plain truths from the welfare secretaries of every city of importance in the country—truths about hospitals and asylums and homes for children and hunger and want among the honest, hard working families, that are the backbone of our American life.

Thirty different cities report relief work getting close to the starvation edge—anad the Senate is listening to those reports and beginning to realize what they actually mean.

That's all we needed here in America.

We just needed the plain truth, that's all.

And now that we've got it—let's 'ace it and drive it out of the country, this misery and want and despair.

It was easy enough for us to sell bonds to send our American sons across the sea to fight to make the world safe for democracy—does anyone dare to say that we can't sell the same kind of bonds to make America safe for American children, and American homes and hard working, honest, self-respecting American men and women.

PROSPERITY BONDS

Isn't it about time that we took care of our own people?

We can do it—you and I, and the rest of the friends and neighbors.

Just let your Congressman and your Senator know what you want him to do in this emergency.

Tell him to vote for the prosperity bond issue, or the federal loan, or whatever name he wants to call it—never mind whose bill it is—this is not time to think of politics.

We aren't either Democrats or Republicans—we are just plain Americans with hungry children crying to us for help.

It is up to you and up to me to see that Congress does not adjourn until one of those practical constructive bills is passed and passed with a glorious heart-warming, blood-stirring majority that will show the world what we Americans can do, when we wake up and stop telling ourselves fairy tales about glorious things that are supposed to be—"just around the corner."

FIVE BILLIONS FOR WORKS URGED

Public Works Needed to Furnish Jobs for Idle; Private Agencies Failing

Pittsburgh welfare leaders today were joined by Gov. Gifford Pinchot in urging federal relief at the earliest possible date, in a widespread demand for the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for urgent federal construction.

Gov. Pinchot said:

"I am an advocate of a $5,000,000,000 federal bond issue for public works because I believe no other measure could do so much to take us out of this depression. It would put money in circulation, force the opening of factories to supply materials, and restore consuming power to millions who now are without it.

ACTIVITY NEEDED

"We need activity, we need greater consumption, we need a revival of confidence. This vast loan o[f] [w]ould not only mean the u[se] of more coal, more oil and more steel and use of a thousand other things, but it would also check deflation and help to bring the dollar back where it belongs. For that reason the farmers would have a particular interest in it. It would help us all and not merely the millionaires."

Allegheny County, with over 190,000 unemployed, faces the exhaustion of its present relief funds by August 20.

After that, the $5,000,000 city bonds authorized at the primaries can be offered for sale, but funds for the county will depend exclusively on what the Poor Board can get in increased taxes.

PRIVATE AGENCIES FAIL

Dr. Edward N. Clopper, executive secretary, Federation of Social Agencies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, said:

"It has been proved that private philanthropies are not adequate. Public assistance is necessary whether it be city, state or federal. Through the latter agency there are improvements that can be made in this district of permanent value. We have found that the worker aided through employment keeps his or her self-respect. A federal appropriation should be provided at the earliest possible date."

Sidney A. Teller, director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, declared:

"Federal relief must be provided and it will be necessarily in the form of employment on

Rolph, Rossi Urge Prosperity Loan

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Gov. James Rolph, Jr., and Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco, appealed for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan from Congress in statements today. The Governor said:

"Now more than ever we need a federal prosperity loan. Relief measures undertaken thus far, although sincere, have created more unemployment than they have relieved. The five billion loan would provide payrolls, the one imperative need in the United States today."

Administration Eats Taxpayers But Gets Thinner

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

This administration is like Old Man Scroggins. The more he ate the thinner he got.

It's gobbling up the taxpayers. But it's still losing a pound a day on a full stomach.

Its prescription for keeping a slim financial figure is perfect. Waste all you can. Then spend the rest on investigations.

We hand Washington first prize in the burlesque Olympic games. It wins the swim in red ink, the marathon dash for cover and the high tariff hurdles.

We agree with Washington when it blames it on the last three administrations, for they were Republicans, too.

And this sudden rush of economy is remarkable after 12 years of busted plumbing in the Treasury.

It proves the prodigal son was a poor politician. If he had been a Republican he would have eaten the fatted calf before he went into exile.

ICE TRUCKS STAGE PARADE THROUGH CITY

Nearly 200 Cars in Line, Representing Dealers, Stores

Nearly 200 ice trucks paraded through the city at noon yesterday in the ice parade sponsored by the National Association of Ice Refrigerators.

Practically all Pittsburgh ice companies and many department stores were represented in the parade, which formed in Schenley Park and continued to the downtown, North Side, South Side and Wilkinsburg, disbanding at Fortieth and Butler streets.

Inspector of Traffic Jacob Dorsey and a squad of motor police led the procession. At Fifth and Wood street the trucks passed in review before John S. Herron, president of Council; Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; Leo Lehman, president of May Stern & Co.; A. B. Hare, president of the Ice Producers' Association, and Frank L. Duggan, general manager of the Consolidated Ice Company.

government projects to save the morale of the needy. The giving of relief through food orders without any physical return from the recipients is a pauperizing system. This has been proven through the emergency fund which saved the self-respect of the workers."

BONDS INEVITABLE

Regarding the city's bond issue of $5,000,000, of which will be in the form of direct relief, it was revealed, while the remaining $2,000,000 will be for jobs on public improvements, a director of the Emergency Relief Association said:

The urgent necessity of federal relief was expressed by many social workers. They added their demands to those of business, political and civic leaders who have previously come out in favor of a part of the $5,000,000,000 federal improvement plan.

BACKED BY LAWMAKERS

Senator Davis and the complete delegation of congressmen from this county have indorsed the prosperity loan as have Congressmen J. Howard Swick of Beaver Falls, Samuel A. Kendall of Meyersdale, N. L. Strong of Sunmerville, and many others.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech; Dr. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University; Arthur Kaufmann, A. H. Burchfield, Sr., Walter Rosenbaum, Jacob Frank and others previously announced they favored it; as did A. L. Humphries of the Westinghouse Airbrake, William G. Costin, president of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, and other companies. Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and the Rev. James R. Cox.

Agencies Urge Work On Return for Relief

Recommendation that all public sources of relief funds stipulate that the unemployed recipients must give some physical return for assistance today was before the directors of the Federation of Social Agencies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, to present before city, county and state authorities.

Delegates of the 117 member groups attending the annual meeting yesterday in the Trinity House adopted a resolution seeking the action. Resolutions for submission to authorities are expected to be prepared at the directors' meeting next month.

Sidney A. Teller, who made the motion, stressed the necessity for at least one able-bodied member of needy families giving some service in return for assistance so that the morale of the recipients would not be weakened by accepting help that corresponds to a dole.

The federation also went on record as favoring city, county and state provision of necessary money to administer relief funds. The relief agencies now bear this expense.

W. M. Acheson, Jr., was re-elected president. Mrs. Mary C. Burnett was the newly named first vice president, while Miss Mildred Duncan was elected recording secretary. New directors named were Mrs. George W. J. Bassell, Philip N. Harrison, John C. Sheriff, Harry F. Stambaugh, Mrs. John W. Woodwell, Stanley P. Ashe, Miss Margaret Brooke, Mrs. Charles C. Cooper, Miss Duncan, Miss Esther M. Hawes, R. W. Harbison, Herbert Spencer and William Witherow.

Named as delegates-at-large were the Rt. Rev. Hugh H. Barker, the Rev. Lester W. Bumpus, the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, John Gilhan and Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson.

VIVIENNE WARE TRIAL NEAR END

Guilty or not guilty, Vivienne Ware gets her last opportunity tonight to prove herself innocent of the murder of Damon Fenwicke as the radio drama over WCAE reaches its conclusion.

The fiction radio trial begins at 8 o'clock—with the final session giving the defense the last opportunity to save Miss Ware.

Whether the murderer of the wealthy architect will become known to his jurors, the radio fans who have followed it is still questionable.

The trial reached its highest dramatic effects in the last session Monday night, when the mother of Dolores Devine, dancer, identified Miss Ware as the murderer, while Joe Gilk, cabbie, testified he picked up a "fare" near the Silver Bowl night club dressed in clothing which fitted the description of either Miss Ware or Miss Devine.

But tonight, at 8, over WCAE, it all ends. The motion picture version of "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" will appear at the Stanley Theater.

CIRCUS HERALD ARRIVES HERE

Circus days will soon be here, because early this morning a brightly painted green and gold advertising car rolled into Pittsburgh to announce the Sells Floto Circus will arrive here for a three-day show, May 23 to 25.

Some hint that Pittsburgh was to become "circus-minded" again was given a few weeks ago when other advance men arrived to contract for the circus grounds, meat and commissary supplies for the hundreds of circus performers and workers, and to provide feed for the elephants and horses.

DEMAND RIGHTS, PINCHOT TELLS LABOR

Governor Advises End to 'Begging' Attitude on Part of Workers' Chiefs

READING, May 11.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today urged organized labor to speak and act for itself, and not look to the "benevolence of industrial leaders for whatever benefits it hopes to achieve."

Addressing the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, he declared there are national labor leaders who are "begging" for "hand-outs" instead of demanding what they consider as essential to their welfare from society as represented by the government.

MUST ACT FOR SELF

To obtain direct and permanent results, he said, labor must act for itself, must "get into the fight for it, instead of wishing for it." He pledged himself to aid in any fight the state labor group may decide to make for unemployment insurance, shorter working hours and other objectives.

He asserted:

"National leaders have demanded that relief be built around private charity—around the hand-out in its most exalted form. For society itself, as embodied in our national government, to take direct steps to bandage its own wounds—this, they say, would be to destroy initiative and soften our rugged individualism.

"Worse still—not only relief plans, but what few plans have been made for permanent recovery, for prevention of disaster in the future—these plans, too, have been built around the benevolence of leaders, not the rights of people.

"Take the President's plan—when he finally admitted that a depression existed—of calling business leaders into conference and urging that they refuse to cut wages. And then note how reliable the benevolence plan proved when these leaders' fat dividends dwindled, and they broke their promises by cutting wages and payrolls right and left.

SEES OPPORTUNITY

"Never did organized labor have such an opportunity as it has today. The economic structure of our entire nation is crying for readjustment. The old system of trusting half to luck and half to the financial barons has proved itself a colossal failure and a colossal hoax.

"We must have real security for the workers, on whom our whole economic structure is built. We must have government recognition of the truth that the right to work is as sacred as the right to live.

"If you want shorter working hours—if you want universal adoption of the eight-hour day, if you want a seven-hour day, or a five-day week—make your plans, draw up your laws and go out and fight.

"If you want government planning, national planning, state planning, for private industry—to help keep it from future crashes, the brunt of which fall on you—get into the fight for it, instead of wishing for it. Your chance was never better."

Fight Trolley Cut In Ross Township

Alleged failure of Ross Township Commissioners to obtain restoration of service on the No. 15 line of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, today resulted in the formation of a committee of township residents which will take up the fight.

A. B. Coombe, chairman of a meeting last night at which the committee was formed, said that the members will canvass the Quail district of the township to promote an organized protest and to secure a representation to attend the hearing before the Public Service Commission May 19.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LOSE 6 POUNDS FAT WEEKLY

Yet Eat And Drink Your Fill?

An Amazing Yet Simple Method Recently Brought to This Country from England That Enables the Average Fat Person to Rip 6 or More Pounds of Fat Off a Week Without Starvation or One Extra Step of Exercise

It seems that the British have found a way to rip off excess fat that's the dream of every too-fat person. That is, to rip it off without starving, without tiring exercise.

Under an extraordinarily simple and pleasant regimen discovered there, the average fat person loses as much as six to ten pounds weekly, yet suffers no pangs of hunger, no aching muscles, no weakness or depression. Returning travelers from Europe talked so much about it, that it has now been brought to this country. Anyone can follow it; so if you want to get thin, here's your chance.

Eat, Sleep, Drink and Grow Thin Doing Only This

All the method involves is a glass of water before breakfast—to clear the intestines and tone the system—and a few minor changes in your diet.

Here is what you do: Tear this article out and save it, so you won't forget.

Before Breakfast: Drink an ordinary tumbler full of cool water to which you've added a teaspoon of effervescent salt. (Get the brand named "Andrews" at any drug store.) This to eliminate the usual curse of fat people: accumulated poisons and bloat. Also to cut the moisture weight of your body—sometimes as much as three pounds in one day.

At Meals: Cut out ONLY fat meats. Eat your usual quantity of lean meats and ADD a double-supply of green vegetables—spinach, cabbage, fresh peas, lettuce, etc. Then for dessert, shift from pastry and pies to FRESH FRUIT. The more you eat of these the better. They're super-nourishing vitamin foods.

Drink, too, if you like them, sauerkraut juice, tomato juice or orange juice "cocktails" before lunch and supper. Eat fresh fruit, too, before bed if you like to eat before retiring.

That's all you do. No wonder England and all of Europe is cheering this discovery. You lose weight day by day, week by week . . . usually from six or seven pounds weekly to even as much as ten pounds, and feel amazingly more alert and active while you are. Doctors of world knowledge widely endorse this way. The salt tones and clears the system. The vitamin foods take the place of those that build weight and fat, and thus fat goes like magic.

Embark on the Great Adventure of getting thin today. Ask your doctor about this if you wish to be doubly sure this is the simplest, safest way to lose embarrassing bulk. You can get Andrews Effervescent Salt at any drug store for a few cents.

In the last year the Army has given out 17,034 baskets of food; cared for 240 women at the maternity hospital; cared for 9,357 transient women; provided 21,986 meals for children at the nursery; provided 12,561 Christmas dinners and served 516,605 meals to men, women and children.

Follies Girl Given Lead In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 11.

No doubt Florenz Ziegfeld will derive a passing satisfaction from the news that Virginia Bruce has just been assigned to play opposite Jack Gilbert in "Downstairs."

Miss Bruce, a tallish blonde with red-gold hair, was chosen by New York's famous connoisseur of publicitude as one of the three most beautiful extra girls in Hollywood. He took her back to the Follies and the movies which previously had been cold promptly brought her back.

BACK AFTER RELEASE

The Gilbert picture will be the actress' best opportunity to date. Though under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, she had made most of her recent pictures at Paramount, the very studio oddly enough which once let her go via the option route.

Miss Bruce

In "Downstairs," Virginia plays a housemaid in a foreign home. Jack Gilbert is to be a chauffeur, a part that will not be entirely sympathetic. That is his own fault, however, as he wrote the story himself and has aided in the adaptation. Monta Bell worked with him and will direct.

Whenever they meet on the United Artists lot, Harold Lloyd and Al Jolson wisecrack each other.

Yesterday, Lloyd flipped.

"Say, Al, I've got 1,000 shares of stock. What will you give me for them?"

YOUR DAILY GOSSIP

Now that she's moving to Malibu, Estelle Taylor will auction the house and all the furnishings where she and Jack Dempsey lived in Los Feliz boulevard. The sale will be public and will take pace May 18 to 21 . . . Norman Foster and Harry Hamilton have completed a new play, "The Sun Worshipers," which will be submitted to Sam Harris shortly. Last year, these two collaborators had their play, "Savage Rhythm," produced on Broadway by John Golden. Foster, I scarcely have to tell you, is the husband of Claudette Colbert. This pair maintains separate establishments in Hollywood (she lives with her mother), but they steadfastly deny all rumors of a marital break.

I like the way Groucho Marx introduced Chic Sale to the members of the West Side Asthma Club. "Boy," he said, "Meet Mr. Sale, the man with the crescent on the door."

When Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Robert Montgomery go on their yachting cruise, the Warner Brothers radio station here will be prepared to broadcast any necessary messages to them from the studio. As a sort of a farewell celebration, Doug and Bob gave a party at the Cocoanut Grove . . . Odd sights in this land of celebrities was the way everybody at the Paramount studio craned to see Reri, the South Sea dancer, who played in "Tabu" and who subsequently went to New York to play in the Follies. . . . They say Gary Cooper is very dissatisfied with his new story at Paramount. An open break is not expected, however. . . . There were 12 days of added scenes on Ann Harding's latest film, "Westward Passage." E. H. Griffith replaced Robert Milton as director. Ann's

Fay's Coming

Fay Templeton will sing in the Nixon the week of May 16 with the Civic Light Opera Company.

Female Fans 'High Brow'

The female of the species is the real intellectual among movie fans. Women cheer loudest for "high brow" entertainment, according to a national poll analyzed by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Preference of Kathleen Norris, the writer, for pictures representing "real life and its problems," was declared by the producers to be typical of the feminine viewpoint. Cornelia Otis Skinner would stress the artistic side of picture making, while Nancy Cox McCormack, the sculptor, would replace "too much crooning in movies as well as radio" with instructive films.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, Zona Gale, Mrs. William Averill Harriman, Agnes Repplier, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Mrs. Margaret Sanger voted for "serious problem plays." In contrast, George Ade, the humorist, said he liked "sheer nonsense on the screen."

Robert E. Sherwood said, "I'll take animated cartoons and comedy always." Howard Chandler Christy and Grantland Rice chimed, "Give us adventure pictures and lots of them."

Foreign Star Offered Noel Coward Play

Lilian Harvey, star of "Congress Dances," which will be released in the United States and Canada by United Artists, may soon come to America to make a picture. According to advices from Hollywood, a major company is bidding for her services to star in an adaptation of "Bitter Sweet," the successful Noel Coward musical play which ran for several months both in New York and London.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

WELL, IT SEEMS that Nick the Greek, gentleman and gambler de luxe, was traveling from Chicago to New York in the not too distant past. He entered the dining car, sat himself at a convenient table and continued to read a book in which he had become highly interested a few moments before. The food pad and pencil were placed before him by the waiter, but he merely kept on reading.

Into the car bounced Tony, a racketeer whom Nick had known for many years. He saw the Greek, slapped him heartily on the back and drew out the chair on the opposite side of the table.

"Say, Nick," he cried enthusiastically. "I'm sure glad I bumped into you. Didn't think I'd know a guy on the train. Mind if I eat with you?"

Nick shook his head.

"Happy to have you, Tony," he replied, "and I'm happy to see you, too. But please don't mind if I seem a little preoccupied. This book I'm reading is more than swell."

The other man nodded vigorously.

"I get you," he chirped. "I ain't got the time to lamp many of them books, but I sure enjoy 'em when I can squeeze in some readin'. Ain't nothin' like a good book."

Nick smiled to himself. He knew that Tony wasn't able either to read or to write, but he also knew that the racketeer hated anyone to know about it. So he said nothing more along those lines.

The waiter placed another pad and pencil before Tony, and then placed a menu in his hand. Nick returned to his book. But he managed to steal an occasional glance at his friend across the table.

Tony was in trouble. The words on the menu meant nothing to him. Had he been sitting alone, he would have ordered a steak and let it go at that. But with Nick present, he'd have to put up a bluff. He tossed the menu in front of the Greek.

"Here, Nick," he murmured with an effort at nonchalance, "you order first. What you goin' to have?"

Nick decided to play the game. He was beginning to enjoy himself.

"I'll leave it to you," he returned courteously. "I know your taste is more than excellent. Just write out your order and double it for me."

The racketeer wet his lips. He was between the devil and the deep blue menu. He couldn't read the menu and he couldn't write the order. But would he admit his secret to Nick the Greek? Not such a determined man as Tony.

He summoned the waiter and pointed to some words on the menu.

"Listen, boy," he cried imperiously, "bring us two orders of this, two orders of this, two orders of this—and two coffees. And write it on the pad yourself. I got a superstition about writin' on dinin' car menus."

He glanced sharply at Nick. No, there was no change in the gambler's expression. He had noticed nothing strange.

"Hope you like what I ordered, Nick," said Tony.

"I know I will," replied the Greek.

About five minutes later, the waiter came back to the table. He put down two orders of mashed potatoes, two orders of boiled potatoes and two orders of baked potatoes.

"It's a funny thing, Nick," he cried. "I love potatoes!".....

IN FRONT of a noted producer the other afternoon a tryout was in progress. An artist's representative, beautifully plastered, wandered into the rehearsal room leading a young woman by the hand.

"Mr. S———," he hiccoughed. "I want you to hear thish girl sing. She's wunnerful. Jus' wait 'til you hear her sing."

The producer nodded. The agent, swaying nobly, fell into a nearby chair and closed his eyes. A few minutes passed and the producer ordered the girl to sing a number. She sang two of them, as the agent, his eyes still closed, dozed in his chair.

The girl was finished. But the final burst of music from the orchestra roused the agent. He rose from his chair, staggered over to the producer and slapped him on the back.

IN ALL MY experience on Broadway I have never found cafe conditions quite as bad as they are today. There was a time—and it was only two or three years ago—when a night life reporter could choose any one of 40 spots to visit. Today the field is decidedly limited. Five years ago the Club Richman tossed a $7 cover charge in your direction and you were lucky to get a table. Today, the snootiest rendezvous counts itself fortunate to collect a $3 cover charge.

The Hollywood restaurant is still doing the best business in the Broadway sector. That spot has three or four competitors, including the inimitable Jack White at his Club Ballyhoo, but the huge Hollywood still leads the list by many, many dollars in the business count. All of these places, naturally, offer a large show without a cover charge.

El Patio and El Garron are the two surviving spots in the swank field. El Patio is doing well, but with Beatrice Lillie as the star attraction, it must play to virtual capacity in order to show a profit. El Garron has plenty of charm and is doing well with the late crowd because of Pancho's excellent orchestra. The Folies' Bergere, another late spot, is the only cafe on Broadway that brings back memories of the good old days. But they are only memories.

Up in Halem, the Cotton Club and Connie's Inn continue to draw the trade. The Cotton Club's new show, beautifully put together by Dan Healy, is a revelation in modern colored entertainment. It is far and away the best floor show I have ever seen. I haven't been to Connie's Inn lately, but they tell me that that show, too, is excellent amusement.

There isn't much more in the cafe field upon which I can comment. It seems strange that, with New York's millions of inhabitants, the field should be so limited. Yet there it is. I do not include, of course, the hundreds of lavish speakeasies in the Broadway sector. Those spots, too, are crying such blues as you have never heard before.

With summer just around the corner, the roadhouses are beginning to open for business—they hope. The proprietors of these outlying places, strangely enough, are the only cafe people I have met in recent months who are very optimistic about their business chances.

Come to think about it, though, they should be optimistic about conditions. Otherwise, how could they have become cafe proprietors in the first place? . . .

Buy Picture Rights Of 'The Barretts'

Purchase of motion picture rights to "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," the highly successful Katharine Cornell stage play, is announced by Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Art Cinema Corporation. It will be included in the forthcoming United Artists program, release being set for February 1, 1933.

Miss Cornell will not appear in the picture, however. In a statement issued in Chicago, where she is now playing in "The Barretts," the star announced that her decision to remain in the theater is unchanged, although she has a deep admiration for the artists and producers who made a success in Hollywood.

Universal Sends Man To Bull Fights

While other Hollywood companies talk of bullfight pictures, Universal has dispatched a man to Spain to photograph the biggest fights of the season there.

He is Tom Kilpatrick, former resident of Mexico and the author of "Men Without Fear," which will be Universal's contribution to the threatened cycle of bull-ring melodramas.

Playing the hero of the film, a matador, will be Lew Ayres, favored actor of the Carl Laemmle organization. Before this, however, he may do the air-mail story, while there is still "Laughing Boy" to be disposed of.

Zasu Pitts to Play 'Is My Face Red'

Zasu Pitts, the best scene "stealer" in the picture business, is added to RKO-Radio's "Is My Face Red!" Zasu gets a gold medal if she can "steal" her customary number of scenes from Ricardo Cortez, Robert Armstrong and Helen Twelvetrees.

William Danforth, comedian of the Civic Light Opera Company, which will present a week of Gilbert & Sullivan in the Nixon opening next Monday, is a veteran of 25 years' standing in G. & S. roles. In that time he has played every male part in "The Mikado." In "Pinafore," which will be grouped with "Trial by Jury" as the opening bill, he will be seen as Dick Deadeye. The box office will open Thursday for the sale of seats for this attraction.

"Hay Fever," showing in the Alvin as the final play in the Professional Players' series, was written by Noel Coward several years ago, and it had only a brief run when originally produced in New York. Revived this season, with Constance Collier as star, its success is attributed to a key and tempo different from the acting of the first attempt. Coward's success of the current season in London, "Cavalcade," will be rewritten for American production. Reason, it now covers 30 years of British history, and it will be altered to cover the same duration of American history.

Our Little Theater groups are in for a busy week. Tonight "The Prince of Darkness" will be given in the Cathedral High School by the Newman Players, under the direction of Madeline Skelly Foust. Thursday and Friday nights "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" will be given by the Dormont High School Seniors, directed by Margaret H. Miller. Friday night the Dramatic Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. will be seen in Owen Davis' "Haunted House," directed by Dr. H. Ward Ewalt, Jr. The same night Peabody High School students will offer "Peg O' My Heart," directed by Mrs. Virginia Yeamans.

At the conclusion of his stage work in Philip Barry's "The Animal Kingdom," now in New York, Leslie Howard will go to Hollywood to assist in getting it ready for the screen. "The Animal Kingdom" had its premiere here, as a production of Gilbert Miller and Mr. Howard, with the latter as its star.

A second company of "Of Thee I Sing," winner of this year's Pulitzer prize, will be readied to take to the highways and byways come fall. There is no gossip as to the possible role-fillers, who in the current New York hit, are, principally, Victor Moore, Lois Moran and William Gaxton.

Comedienne Appears For Stage Role

Edna May Oliver, RKO Radio star comedienne, is completing her scenes in "Hold 'Em Jail" at the studios in Hollywood, preparatory to coming to New York to play her original stage role of Parthy in Florenz Ziegfeld's revival of "Show Boat," for which David O. Selznick, RKO production head, has granted Miss Oliver a brief leave of absence.

Expedition Planned By Zane Grey

Next fall, Zane Grey will leave on a combined fishing and motion picture expedition that will take him to the South Seas and completely around the continent of Australia.

Stories of Broadway Coming Back

After being taboo for some time, stories about Broadway are showing up again on the film lists. Fox plans to feature Joan Bennett in "Broadway Bad," a story of a stage-struck girl on the lane of many lights. William Lipman and A. W. Tezet are the authors. Production is scheduled for the summer. Meanwhile, Joan finishes "Week-Ends Only" for Fox.

Police Court Setting For New Picture

Night court in a big city provides the setting for the dramatic meeting of John Barrymore and Helen Twelvetrees in RKO Radio Pictures' "State's Attorney." The two are the central figures in a torrid romance. Harriet Hagman, beauty of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," recently awarded an RKO Radio contract, gets her first screen role in "Is My Face Red?"

Blonde, Brunnette War 'Rages' at Studio

Blonde and brunette warfare shifted to a new front at the RKO Radio Pictures studio the other day when Jill Esmond was cast for a featured role in "Is My Face Red?" As her love rival the petite brunette beauty has blonde Helen Twelvetrees. This screen rivalry is carried over from "State's Attorney," in which the two were central figures with John Barrymore in a romantic triangle.

CRISIS CALLS FOR STRONG LEADERS

Quieting Financial Nerves By Hope Only May Bring Some Negative Results

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
United News Service

NEW YORK, May 11 — The recent quieting of the shaken nerves of the financial community was accomplished by spreading the report from Washington that much of the threatened "disturbing" legislation will not be finally enacted.

If the impression proves correct the result will only be negative in character. Thus far no field marshal has come forward with sufficient leadership not only to induce the national legislature to eschew fallacies but also to act positively along useful lines including acceleration of public works, sound taxation, tariff revision, modernization of the anti-trust laws, constructive farm relief and machinery for industrial planning and economic co-ordination.

Mr. Rukeyser

FRANKNESS URGED

There is mild satisfaction in the thought that all possible faulty legislative proposals will not be accepted, but there would be greater reason for optimism if there were evidence of a co-ordinated, bipartisan effort to translate into law various sound remedial proposals.

Irrespective of temporary ups and downs of the stock ticker, the country should not identify its needs with the wishes of reactionaries. Standpatters have been discredited by the very course of events which have disproved some of their fundamental assumptions.

After the recent flood of criticism for canvassing the inflated employe stock purchase plan, a group of directors of the Electric Bond and Share Company has issued an explanatory pamphlet entitled "Why a Sound Plan Failed and Was Repealed." In fair weather this company was not especially liberal in furnishing full information to stockholders. It is not enough to take the owners into confidence on special occasions. Good management and the best interests of outside investors call for an undeviating policy of frankness at all stages of the business cycle.

EXAMPLE SET

Numerous executives are changing their conception of accounting, and are regarding it as a tool of management, rather than a mere ritual to comply with outside demands for information. Creative accounting gives the responsible executive a photographic view of a situation. The president of one large industrial corporation, which uses modern accounting methods, told me that in his New York office he knows more about a development in a distant plant than the local superintendent who is distracted by irrelevant details.

The greater than seasonal upturn in General Motors retail sales in April following the exhibits in 55 cities constitutes an important object lesson for the business men of the country. Dictates that alert aggressive merchandising can contribute vastly more to trend bucking than lying low, and waiting passively for the economic storm to blow over. There is an opportunity in organizing for recovery rather than merely hoping wistfully for it.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Gaining — Local Market Quiet

STOCK PRICES CREEPING UPWARD

Chemical, Food and Utility Groups Stage Upturns; Carrier Issues Pressed

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The stock market was again unable to make consistent or notable progress today, but it still showed more inclination to move forward than to slip back.

During the first hour, the list pushed up 1 to 2 points for many of the leaders, but lost much of its rise around noon. By early afternoon the market was again creeping forward, with leaders mostly up fractions to more than a point. The coalition economy move in the Senate, and the government's bullish wheat crop report, were cited as favorable factors.

The chemical, food, tobacco and utility shares were prominent in the early upturn. Despite the subsequent recession, early afternoon found gains of 1 to 2 points in Allied Chemical, Sears, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas, Coca Cola, McKeesport, Lehman and Eastman, while Standards of New Jersey and California, American Can, North American and Du Pont were up fractionally. United States Steel and American Telephone were only about steady. New York Central turned rather heavy, losing a point, and Union Pacific followed it down. United Aircraft sagged a point to a new low.

Omission of New York Central's dividend, while it had been foreshadowed by deferment of action in the previous quarter, apparently prompted some selling of the carrier issues. Union Pacific's directors meet for action tomorrow, and although that road is one of the small group expected to earn fixed interest charges this year, a cut in the $10 annual dividend rate is widely expected, inasmuch as earnings have been running far under that level in recent months.

Chancellor Bruening's emphatic statement before the Reichstag that Germany was through with reparations again attracted attention to the international situation, but neither domestic nor foreign markets were notably influenced. Banking quarters felt that the stage was being set for a troublesome conference at Lausanne next month, when an agreement to replace the one-year moratorium will be sought. Wall street, however, remained more interested in domestic problems, and particularly the balancing of our own budget.

The weekly electric power production report was again unfavorable, showing a reduction of 12.7 per cent from the like week of last year. This is the widest reduction yet to be reported, and compared with 11.5 per cent in the previous week. Bradstreet's report of business insolvencies for the week ended May 5, showing only 553 as reduced from 610 in the previous week, was one of the more encouraging of the week's statistical displays. In fact, it was the best report in this series since early March.

CENTRAL OMITS DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, May 11.—New York Central Railroad has omitted the dividend on the common stock. Three months ago the company notified stockholders that the quarterly dividend policy then in effect had been changed to a semi-annual basis and that consideration of the payment then due would be taken up later.

After the meeting today the board stated that "it was out of the question to declare a dividend at this time," and that the road has not been able to earn currently its fixed charges because of decline in gross revenues and despite economies in operation.

The last dividend on the stock was $1 paid November 2, 1931. The rate had been successively reduced from the $2 quarterly basis in effect up to May, 1931.

The company suffered a deficit after charges in the first quarter of $1,318,852, against a loss of $144,913 in the first three months of last year.

TEN EXTRA-BASE HITS IN FIVE TILTS

REPORTS OF YESTERDAY'S game in Cincinnati give almost as much prominence to the success of Pitcher Ray Benge in holding Ernest Lombardi to a single as to the fact that he shut out the Reds and snapped their winning streak at five straight. And it can't be said that the first-mentioned feat wasn't worthy of the special mention it received, in view of the manner in which Lombardi had been mauling other pitchers.

Ernest Lombardi

Yesterday's game was the first in a string of six since Lombardi returned to the Red lineup, after an injury, in which the walloping backstop failed to make at least one extra-base hit. In five consecutive games he crashed out 12 hits in 23 times at bat for an average of .522 and a total of 28 bases. All but two of the 12 blows were for extra sacks, his drives including six doubles, two triples and two homers. In a total of eight games in which he has participated since the season opened, Lombardi has made 16 hits, 10 of them long ones, in 34 times up, for an average of .471. The dope that said Babe Herman was the big punch the Reds were getting in that six-player trade with the Dodgers appears to have got the names mixed.

ACCORDING TO ART SHIRES, the popular impression that he was made to give up professional fighting by Commissioner Landis is all wrong. The Boston first-sacker declares there was no truth in the reports published at the time that Landis had summoned him to headquarters and ordered him to quit the ring or get out of organized baseball.

Shires says he withdrew from the fight game of his own free will because he didn't like it; that he visited the commissioner's office voluntarily to inform Landis he was fed up on boxing and would stick to baseball, and that the Judge congratulated him heartily on his decision.

ATTENDANCE FIGURES AT Forbes Field have been lean since the opening series with the Cardinals, but in all probability there will be an upward trend in the turnstile count with the coming of the Giants tomorrow for a three-game set.

Regardless of position, John McGraw's colorful troupe long has been the National League's best drawing card in Pittsburgh, and the usual increased local interest is likely to be in evidence during the club's first visit of 1932.

THE APPEARANCE OF Johnny Evers with the Braves here this week, whereas he formerly spent all of his time after the spring trip hunting ivory, has its explanation in the fact that he and Manager Bill McKechnie have worked out a new basis for their scouting system. The scouts of most other clubs are on the lookout for material of promise in a general sense—timber for any department. But hereafter Evers will go out with a fixed object in view. Manager McKechnie is carrying him all around the circuit on the Braves' early trips so that he can learn from personal observation just what the club needs, whether it be an infielder, an outfielder, a reserve for some department, or possibly a good pinch-hitter.

Bill McKechnie

WITH THE BOSTON pilot and his wide-awake scout each keeping an eye on things during every game, there is little danger that any weak spot on the club will escape detection. What McKechnie doesn't see, Evers will, and what Evers doesn't see isn't worth seeing.

After each game the two get together and hold a conference, at which they compare notes and observations, and exchange opinions. At the end of the Western trip they expect to know exactly what the Braves need, and then it will be Johnny's job to go out and get just that.

NO OTHER BASEBALL man is quite so bitter as Evers against players banished from the game for alleged crookedness. Johnny goes so far as to refuse to give them a rating among the all-time stars at their respective positions. He expressed his feelings when Joe Vila asked him whom he rated the best first baseman from 1906 to 1913.

"Frank Chance," Evers replied promptly. "He was a good fielder, a good hitter and a great fighter. He was a great manager, too, but I'm not taking that into consideration. I'm judging him only as a first baseman." When some one asked, "But what of Hal Chase?" Johnny's eyes blazed and his jaw was thrust out.

"DON'T MENTION CHASE in the same breath with Chance" the former second-base star exploded. "On Chase's acknowledged record, he isn't entitled to any consideration. I don't care how much ability he had. He forfeited every right to consideration as a ball player by the things he did. How, in fairness, can you compare him with a man like Chance, who was a credit to the game all his life? I'll tell you something else along that line. In my sporting goods store in Troy I sometimes get bats and gloves bearing the stamped autographs of Joe Jackson, Swede Risberg, Eddie Cicotte and some of the other 1919 White Sox, because there are a few of them left in the stock of the wholesale houses. When I do, I bundle them right up and ship them back. I want no part of, and no profit on, stuff indorsed by men who tried to tear down a game to which other men, myself included, have devoted their lives."

WHATEVER FRANK WYKOFF, America's leading sprint prospect for the Olympic Games, accomplishes for the cause of Uncle Sam in the big meet, will be done in the 100-yard dash only. Wykoff is remaining firm in a decision to give up the 220 for the season.

It was in the furlong that Wykoff suffered an injury to his back recently, and he has decided to stock to the century hereafter. He wants to run in the Fresno relays Saturday, but may not be able to compete. If he does run, it will be in either the open 100-yard dash or in the 440 relay.

IT IS EXPECTED that Eddie Gerard, veteran hockey pilot, who resigned as manager of the New York Americans after two years of vain endeavor to produce a winner, will return to the Montreal Maroons, a team he once guided to the world championship.

In fact, it is understood that the Maroons have already offered Gerard the post of manager, and his acceptance is considered a mere formality. There has been no hint as to the identity of the new manager of the Americans.

Tommy Laughran

ANOTHER FIGHTER ADJUDGED done some time ago by the Queensberry jury will tackle the steep comeback grade tonight in Philadelphia, when Tommy Loughran faces Steve Hamas again in an attempt to prove that it was only a temporary offspell that caused his knockout in two rounds at the hands of the former Penn State athlete several months ago. Loughran may not, probably will not, ever regain the ranking he formerly held as a heavyweight championship contender, but there is a strong chance that Hamas will find him a much tougher foeman tonight than in their first meeting. A long rest may have restored enough of Tommy's waning leg power and speed to hold him up for at least one 10-round performance, and if that's the case it won't be surprising if he turns the tables on Hamas by outpointing him. There is no question as to which is the better boxer. The doubt centers around Loughran's underpinning and his ability to keep that first keyo out of his mind.

BUTLER TO BID FOR TITLE IN SECTION I

By TOM BIRKS

Women members of the golf world hold the spotlight this afternoon as the women's team matches for Section I and II get under way at the St. Clair and Stanton Heights courses. Section I teams will start operations at Stanton Heights. The clubs composing the section will work hard to try and keep Oakmont from repeating as champions.

BUTLER IN SECTION I

This season the Butler Country Club team will be a member of Section I. Walter Johnstone's proteges made a wonderful showing in Section II last season and will provide plenty of real competition for Section I rivals. Section II will play at St. Clair where 18 holes of sporty golf will usher in the season with the championship and a chance to climb into Section I as the prizes.

This morning at Valley Heights the women members will hold a golf breakfast. Officers for the season may be elected. The first one-day tourney is carded for next Wednesday.

Saturday is going to be a big day for members of the Edgewood Country Club. The red and blue team matches will be held. The prize will be the A. J. Turner trophy.

DUKES MEET KISKI

Coach Emil Loeffler will take his Duquesne University golf team to Saltsburg today, where Jim Mark's crack Kiski squad will be met. This is an assignment for the wearers of the red and blue, seeing that Capt. Bill Mercer and his mates swamped Pitt at Highland on Monday. Jim Marks, Jr., Foster Meyers and Bob Hamilton, together with Capt. Mercer, form a most formidable array.

However, the Oakmont wizard feels that the Dukes will make a good showing, and repeat when Villanova is met at Alcoma Saturday morning.

HOCKEY LEAGUE CUTS SALARIES

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—The times being what they are, the National Hockey League has set a limit of $7,500 on individual player salaries and reduced the player limit to 14.

Action to reduce expenses was deemed necessary at the semi-annual meeting yesterday after it was revealed that only three of the eight clubs had not finished "in the red." Figures for each club were not made public, but it was understood that only the New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens made money.

Not only was the individual salary limit cut to $7,500, but it was decided each club should be limited to a total expenditure of $70,000 for player salaries next season.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE GLOWWORM GROTTO—There are about 100 miles from Auckland to the Waitomo Caves of New Zealand, but a most wonderful sight was my reward for the strenuous trip. Before I entered the caves, I donned spiked shoes to avoid slipping on the deep, wet inclines, and, after crossing a low, narrow tunnel, boarded a small boat. We sailed on an underground river in utter darkness for a considerable distance. And suddenly we were in a huge cavern which appeared to be a gloriously lighted heaven. The millions of lights were glowworms, each one hanging by a slender thread from the stalactites of the cavern. They shed a light by which it is possible to discern things quite clearly. Visitors must observe the deepest silence, because the tiny threads act as antennae for sound, and the slightest sound will cause the glowworms to extinguish their lights. The Glowworm Grotto is one of the sights that years cannot efface from memory. TAPU—The tribal Maori priests were hedged about with religious restrictions which made them tapu. A tapu was debarred from contact with the outside world, on pain of death by supernatural means. The Tohunga in my drawing fell under the ban ow tapu after he had handled the mortal remains of a tribal priest. Being debarred from touching food and drink, he had to be fed in the manner I illustrated, while his hands were tied behind his back. I drew this scene from life during my stay in Rotorua, New Zealand, the home of the Maori people. THE COLOR OF THE WHITE ELEPHANT—The so-called white elephant, which is sacred to the Burmese and Siamese, and which is represented on the Siamese flag, may be rare and sacred, but it certainly is not white. I saw the sacred specimen maintained in the King's stables at Bangkok, Siam. When I remarked that the white elephant really was brown in color, with blotches of pink on its skin, I was informed that the term "white elephant" is a misnomer, due to a mistranslation of the Siamese word for "blond," the color of the spots on the head and trunk. The blotches are caused by a dermal disease affecting the color of the elephant's leathery skin.—Waitomo, N. Z., February, 1932.

TOMORROW: SIAM'S SOLITARY HERO.

PITT AND TECH FACE TESTS

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's chances of finishing with more points than Notre Dame in the dual track and field meet booked for the Pitt Stadium Saturday, hardly to be confused with anything short of about a 50-to-1 shot, will not be improved any if Rob Roy is unable to turn in a job of mile running for the Panthers.

The Panthers have met Ohio State and Penn State to date and have taken two squarely on the lug. It would be nice to break into the victory column at the expense of Notre Dame, and it also would be nice to break into a bank some dark night with a big sack and a small conscience.

Roy, a veteran runner, who was out of school for two years, has been unable to round into form, and his running to date has been very much so-so. With Rob hitting at the 4:30 clip of which he is capable, the Panthers will stand a fair chance of picking up some extra points, very much needed ones, too.

The feature race of the meet will bring Alex Wilson, Notre Dame's Canadian Olympic team star, and Pitt's Bill Keller together in the 400 meters.

Coach Guy Halferty has a light warmup session listed for his Carnegie Techers for today and tomorrow in preparation for the dual meet Friday at Beaver Falls with Geneva. Where Pitt hasn't won a meet yet, Tech hasn't lost one.

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

Lawson Robertson—Head Coach American Olympic Teams

CHAPTER XXVIII.

If the U. S. A. is nursing any hopes relative to winning the hammer throw in the Olympic duels in Los Angeles, I am constrained to advise dismissal of the idea, provided one Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan is among our rivals.

This son of Erin, competing in the 1928 games, was a raw novice in comparison with the form he has displayed since, yet he took the honors without extending himself with a 51.39 meters throw of the 16-pound weight.

He is a giant of a man, possessed of tremendous strength, and has the knack of putting all of his great energy into his heave at the exact fraction of a second when it is needed for artistic success.

NEAR RYAN'S RECORD

O'Callaghan has gone along with his throwing since 1928 to achieve his climax last year with a toss of 184 feet 4 inches. That is more than five feet short of P. J. Ryan's throw in one of the National championships in 1913, but we haven't any P. J. Ryans these days—nor has any other nation. At least, no other country has exposed to view anybody approaching O'Callaghan in class.

Porhola, of Finland, tossed for 176 feet in 1931; Skold, of Sweden, covered 170 feet, 10 inches, and Jennson, of Sweden, negotiated 168 feet 9 inches. These are the best European marks and all those are puny throws in comparison with O'Callaghan's official 184 feet 4 inches, which, I understand, he has since bettered.

HAS LITTLE OPPOSITION

I would not be surprised to see O'Callaghan beat Ryan's mark before his career is done, and, under pressure, he may do it in the Olympics.

Up to the present time, we have located only three men who are gifted in hammer-throwing, and all these have marks that constitute merely tuneup efforts by O'Callaghan. Those men are Flannagan, of the Boston A. A.; Conner, of Yale, and Black, of Maine. I cannot vision any of the trio menacing O'Callaghan.

It is possible—but only barely possible—that the different track and field meets or the Olympic tryouts this spring and summer will bring to view some American who suddenly has become a sensational hammer man. If not, then I am very much afraid that the championship of this event will go to Europe, and, no doubt, in the custody of Dr. Pat O'Callaghan, one of the greatest hammer throwers the world has known.

Derby Champion Rates Third With Trainer

"Blue Larkspur was the greatest horse I ever trained," Thompson said at Belmont Park, where Burgoo King is resting preparatory to the Preakness at Pimlico Saturday. "Next to him I would rank Bubbling Over, which won his derby by six lengths."

Burgoo King, a son of Bubbling Over, won this year's derby by five lengths. Blue Larkspur finished fourth in the 1929 renewal of that classic.

GOLF DATES CHANGED

ROCKFORD, Ill., May 11.—(AP.)—Dates of the western amateur golf championship to be played at the Rockford Country Club have been changed to August 22 to 27. The original date, August 29 to September 4, was changed to avoid conflict with the Walker Cup international competition.

STRIBLING VICTOR

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., May 11.—(AP.)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, making his first appearance in the ring since he was defeated by Ernie Schaaf at Chicago last December, won an easy 10-round decision here last night over George Neron, Greek heavyweight.

Game starts at 3:30 o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Gibson-McKechnie baseball clans were ready to windup their interrupted series this afternoon, but owing to the soggy condition of the Oakland Orchard there were grave doubts as to whether the final contest could be staged. The heavy rainfall that canceled the sport of yesterday thoroughly soaked the home of the Pirates.

In the event a battle is waged, the opposing managers are likely to stick to the pitchers assigned for duty yesterday. That means Steve Swetonic and Eddie Brandt will swap punches. Brandt is one of the best southpaw hurlers in the National League, while Steve has copped two of the seven Pittsburgh victories over the scoreless route.

BUCS MISS HURLERS

There was nothing encouraging to report in the camp of the Bucs this morning. From down St. Louis way, where Heinie Meine holds forth, there is little else but silence so far as the holdout righthander is concerned. Quite naturally, Heinie will not be singing the St. Louis or Pittsburgh Blues over the unexpected turn of events. Indeed, he could be pardoned if he offers the old yet oft-times impressive "I-told-you-so" number to the neighbors.

Boss Gibson will tell you he misses Remy Kremer almost as much as he minds the absence of the St. Louis Dutchman. Any club would be in a bad way if it could not count on the services of its two leading flingers. Where, for instance, would the Bruins be without Pat Malone and Lonnie Werneke? This Werneke lad, by the way, seems to be living up to all the nice things said about him by Rogers Hornsby.

Well, to get back to the Pirates—or, more to the point, to get down to them—the boys have dropped 10 of their last 11 ball games. On the other hand, the officials of the club do not seem to be visibly affected by the slump of the home team. They appear to think the clouds have a silver lining.

GIANTS HERE NEXT

John McGraw and his Giants will make their bow at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting. The lowly yet haughty New Yorkers, like the Buccos, have been taking it on the button regularly, but the appearance here of any New York outfit under McGraw is something better than a customary performance.

The Giants will stay in town for the remainder of the week. After staging Saturday's game, the Pirates will hurry to Brooklyn, where they will meet the Dodgers in one of those Sunday contests that have crept into the schedule in recent years. Leaving for Pittsburgh the same night, the Pirates and Dodgers will open a four-game series at Forbes Field on Monday.

GRIDDER TRIES SUICIDE

BALTIMORE, May 11.—(AP.)—Harry H. Jackson, former University of Missouri football star, today was reported to be on a fair way to recovery from an overdose of narcotic taken with suicidal intent at an East Baltimore street hotel yesterday. The head of the Youngsters of America Hospital said the man passed a restless night, but was sleeping quietly this morning.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, May 11.—I hear Connie Mack is considering shifting Mickey Cochrane to third base. That's just so Mickey will have to talk louder at opposite batsmen. As soon as his voice got adjusted, he'd go back to the catcher's job. It's just a matter of acoustics.

Nick Altrock

As Babe Ruth goes, so go the Yanks. And, as Mickey Cochrane talks, so go the A's. That's why they look a little hoarse this season.

And, say, there's nothing wrong with the Yanks this year. They've played to more than 300,000 customers already. If a St. Louis club had an attendance like that, they'd think the populations of China, India and Russia had merged.

SECTION I TENNIS SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

P. T. A. LEAGUE RACE TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The yearly chase for the championship of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League and possession of the Davis Keg will get under way on Saturday, May 21, according to announcement last evening at the third annual P. T. A. "tennis night" smoker at the P. A. A. The race is billed to terminate on Saturday, July 30.

The Section I schedule alone was released at last night's session, indecision on the part of several Section II outfits as to whether or not circumstances will permit them to compete in loop action during the coming campaign obviating possibility of compiling the secondary circuit card until later in the week.

EIGHT CLUBS SET

Eight squads will make up the top flight: Edgewood, P. A. A., South Hills, University Club, Stanton Heights, Westinghouse, Mt. Lebanon and Bellevue. The North Boroughs array is the only new crew listed.

A large throng of netmen, representative of nearly every racquet organization in the county, attended the Tennis Night soiree. Enthusiasm over prospects for the impending season ran high and discussion of the vigorous P. T. A. expansion program for the summer was continual.

TECH MATCHES OFF

An important feature of the seance was disclosure by Tourney Chairman Frank S. Smith of details of the forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania championships. The affair this year will again be held at the Stanton Heights Golf Club. June 18 to June 26 are the dates.

The Carnegie Tech-Grove City match here and the Tech Freshmen-Shady Side Academy match at Shady Side, scheduled today, were postponed because of wet courts. It was thought that the Geneva-Bethany match carded at Bethany also would be called off.

The Section I schedule follows:

June 4, Bellevue at South Hills; University Club at Edgewood; Stanton Heights at Westinghouse; Mount Lebanon at P. A. A.

U. S. Women's Golf Team in England

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 11.—(AP)—With nary a husband in sight, the American women's golf team which will play an English team at Wentworth next week, arrived today on the liner Berengaria.

"After all, husbands are only a nuisance and we thought they had best be left behind," said Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare.

LEWIS BEATS PINETSKI

BOSTON, May 11.—(AP)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, 230, former claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling championship, defeated Leon Pinetski, 230, Polish giant, on two falls at the Boston Garden last night. Lewis took the first fall with a headlock in 13:05 and the second with the same hold in 7:18.

BOOTH IN LINEUP

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 11.—(AP)—Albie Booth, returned to Yale athletic competition yesterday after five months inactivity because of a lung infection, taking his old place at shortstop on the Eli baseball team in its game against Rikkio University of Japan.

SEALS PRACTICE UP

RABBIT MARANVILLE — ART SHIRES

Using a ball and bat for a microphone, two stars of the Boston Braves, who will appear with Johnny Evers, former ace, and a host of other sports notables on the Trained Seals program of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE tonight, are shown rehearsing for the event. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

SEALS FEATURE SPORT STARS

Speaking of cabbages and kings how about listening to the Trained Seals do their stuff over WCAE at 6:50 o'clock tonight for a 25-minute session?

There'll be a variety program of a little bit of everything, with some notables of the sports world co-operating with the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to put it over.

And Edward D. Seitz and Paul G. Sullivan, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, who'll tell the listeners how it is possible to build and maintain a good tennis court at a minimum of cost.

And Tom Birks, of the sports staff, in two songs. Charles J. Doyle parrying thrusts with the baseball bigwigs, and Miss Marian Salmon, of WCAE, at the piano.

Between Rounds

Henry Firpo and Joe Knight meet in Boston next Monday night in a battle postponed from last Monday.

Ray Tramblie, Rockford (Ill.), middleweight, who boxed Dave Shade in Indianapolis last week and has met many of the stars of the class, will show his wares in the main bout of the closing show of the season at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, with Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, serving as his opponent.

Both men are punchers. Pirrone fought Tiger Joe West in his last two appearances here, stopping him the first time and winning the decision in a return go.

Another good out-of-town middleweight who will box here shortly is Jack Kilbourne, of Chicago. Although he has been boxing windups before large crowds in Chicago, Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Meyers Bowl, has signed Kilbourne for one of the six-round bouts on his Tony Canzoneri-Battling Gizzy card Monday night, May 23.

BOWL LANDS FIELDS

The long-talked-about Jackie Fields-Ted Yarosz match may be the second feature of the season at the Bowl, May 31. Manager Ray Alvis, of Fields, practically agreed to the pairing before he left yesterday for Cleveland, where he planned to attend the Mickey Walker-Johnny Risko fight, which was called off during the afternoon. It is now up to Yarosz to come to terms. The match will be a non-title affair.

Tony Herrera and Lew Massey may box here again, as a result of Massey's victory over Tony at the Garden last Monday night. This makes them all even, Tony having won their first meeting in Philadelphia recently. It may serve as the opening or second show at Greenlee Field, on either June 1 or June 8.

Herrera yesterday was inclined to blame his poor showing after the fifth round on trouble in making the weight. He said he scaled 142 pounds for Ray Collins in Chicago last week and had to weaken himself getting down to 137½ for Massey.

SEEKS RETURN BOUT

"I know what was wrong with me," Tony said, "and all I want is another bout with Massey. I'll knock him out the next time. He had no license hitting me with those chopping rights, or, rather, I had no license to walk into them. I just didn't have the zip. No, he didn't hurt me. He is only a fair puncher. If the third round hadn't ended when it did, with Massey on the floor for a count of two, I might have done myself some good, but, after the halfway mark, I didn't have enough left to carry on. I shot what strength I had in the first four rounds, trying to make a good fight of it to please the fans, knowing that Masses likes to lie back and pick off his opponents. Well, he did it, anyway, when he got around to it, but it will be different the next time. I'll welcome the chance to come back to Pittsburgh and box him again, preferably at a pound heavier weight."

The local sandlot schedule again was wiped out last evening by rain, and unless the sun gets in some work today the various ball parks are going to be soggy, and the games scheduled for today will stand a good chance of being postponed.

This evening the West Penn League holds the spotlight with a pair of games. The City circuit also flashes a couple of engagements.

At Greenlee Field, the Soho McKnights, under the managerial wing of Pat Griffin, will swing into action with the Carrick Eagles. The McKnights got away to a good start by beating the Pittsburgh Cardinals, who later defeated Dormont. Brosky twirled that game for the Soho team, and he expects to take the mound in the opener.

At Homestead, a local battle will be staged when the Duquesne Republicans and Jack Ferris Aces get into action at West Field. The Aces have played only one pre-season game.

The City League champions will begin the defense of the title at Dormont this evening with Art Rooney's North Siders providing the opposition. A parade featuring Mt. Lebanon High's 60-piece band and a pennant-raising ceremony will precede the game. Burgess Charles Chamberlain will pitch the first ball.

The South Hills community has organized a mushball league. This evening the Police and Firemen clash with Central Square, while the Merchants meet the Royals. Charles Curren is the league president. The teams are scheduled for two games a week.

The Cuban Stars and the Homestead Grays open a two-game East-West League series at Cycler Park, McKeesport, at 6:15 o'clock this evening, the second contest being scheduled for Forbes Field on tomorrow evening.

CHICAGO INCREASES LEAD

BRUIN HURLERS, HITTERS KEEP CLUB ON TOP

Associated Press.

Tearing along three games in front of their closest pursuers today, their great pitching staff mowing down opposing batsmen with relentless efficiency and their hitters thumping in unison, the Chicago Cubs threaten to make a runaway of the National League race.

When young Lon Warneke set the New York Giants down yesterday, 8 to 2, the leaders scored their fourth straight victory over eastern clubs and their thirteenth win in 16 engagements. Unless Rogers Hornsby's team is slowed down soon it will pile up such an advantage it will be able to coast through to the flag.

The Giants could find Warneke for only five hits yesterday, two of which came after two were out in the ninth and provided their second run.

While the Cubs were winning, the Phillies blanked Cincinnati, 4-0, as the Cards and Robins and Pirates and Braves were idle.

In the American League Philadelphia shut out Chicago, 9-0. Detroit beat Boston, 11-0, and New York hammered St. Louis, 10-0. Sorrell, of the Tigers, pitched a two-hit game against the Red Sox.

Ramage Beats Okun, Crowd Boos Decision

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 11.—(AP.)—Yale Okun, cunning campaigner from New York's East Side, won the public plaudits in a rough 10-round bout here last night, but his youthful heavyweight opponent, Lee Ramage, had his hand raised as the victor.

The crowd voiced a long clamorous protest, but Referee Abe Roth said he was convinced the San Diego lad had outpointed his opponent. The Associated Press card gave Okun seven rounds and the rest to his opponent.

Ramage was unable to get inside the wide sweeping rights and left hooks of Okun and bled through the entire battle from the nose and mouth. The New Yorker's only mark was a discolored left eye. Roth warned Okun repeatedly for low blows and for sticking his thumbs in Ramage's eyes. Each weighed 176½ pounds.

Dodgers Attempt To Obtain Bottomley

ST. LOUIS, May 11.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers have their eyes on Sunny Jim Bottomley, genial first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Max Carey, manager of the Brooklyn Club, admitted that trade talk was going on between him and Cardinal officials while the Dodgers are here for a series, and made it known that the chief stumbling block to a deal was the high price put on Bottomley by the Cards. Carey did not mention the price, but Branch Rickey, vice-president of the Cardinals, is reported to have asked $150,000 for the man whose batting average last year was .348.

CANZONERI BOOKED

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP.)—Signed to meet Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, here June 14, in a 10-round bout, Harry Dublinsky began training today. The match was made yesterday by Al Weiner. It will be a non-title affair.

SET FOR PREAKNESS

BURGOO KING . . . . WINNER OF THE KENTUCKY DERBY

DERBY WINNER ON EDGE FOR PREAKNESS

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP.)—Burgoo King, winner of the Kentucky Derby, has retired to the honor stall in the E. R. Bradley's stable, fit and ready for the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico Saturday. He gave a satisfactory exhibition in his workout yesterday.

The final word that will send the Kentucky-bred son of Bubbling Over to the post in the rich three-year-old feature will be forthcoming today, but barring an unforseen accident the King will be among the 10 of 12 starters in the one and three-sixteenth mile race according to Trainer Dick Thompson.

Unlike his famous sire, the King is not a great work horse. He also is adverse to long and frequent train rides and is easily thrown off his feed.

Eugene James, the 19-year-old former Louisville newsboy, who rates high in the estimation of both Bradley and Thompson, probably will be up on the King in the Preakness.

Rain Washes Out School Diamond Card

The City League and W. P. I. A. L. baseball schedules were further tangled with yesterday, as the complete card was washed out by rain. The schedules are filled with postponements, which will hamper the settling of the championships.

Yesterday the teams waited until the very last minute before calling off their contests.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

CHAPTER XXX

The moment we were alone Colt brought me to the body and put his finger on the dead man's throat.

"And here," added Thatcher Colt, bending beside the sprawled figure, "is the messenger of death!"

He picked up the dead insect between his fingers; its long feelers waved as my expelled breath passed over them. In silence Colt put the Mexican scorpion into an envelope, sealed and marked it and gave it into my keeping.

"Our work is cut out for us," continued the Commissioner, "but before I notify Flynn and the rest, I want to do some private sleuthing and ask a few questions without interruption. Has Mrs Baldwin regained consciousness?"

UNPLEASANT WORK

As always in such investigations, my instincts revolted against the work we now had to do. This poor woman should be surrounded with sympathy and understanding, strict privacy and loving ministrations. But that was impossible. In her own way, she too was a victim—as in life, who is not? She would want to be alone, but instead she would have to face the police. Even in these first few moments of shock and terror and numbing surprise, the widow of Dr. Baldwin must answer Thatcher Colt's questions, must allow the uttermost intimacies of her married life to be invaded, pried into, dangled before her to be identified, analyzed and explained away. To Colt, as to me, this is and will always be the most distasteful feature of police work. But there is no escape. Here as everywhere else the quest of truth does not lie down a pleasant path.

Thatcher Colt stood before Mrs. Hugh Baldwin and spoke to her kindly, explaining the necessity for questioning her. But she put the commissioner immediately at ease. In a low voice and with her round blue eyes fixed upon him clearly, she said:

"I know that Hugh has died suddenly and I know that he was called in last night upstairs, so I am not surprised to find you here and I am ready to answer your questions."

UNHAPPY TOGETHER

It seemed a brave speech, a courageous attitude, and Colt said as much as he drew up a chair, sat down and faced her, while I drew out notebook and pencil.

"Did your husband return home last night, Mrs. Baldwin?"

"No, but he telephoned."

"About what time?"

"It was after 4 o'clock."

"Will you tell me what he said?"

"It was a strange conversation, Mr. Colt. I suppose there is no use pretending that Hugh and I were happy together. We weren't. We hadn't been for a long, long time. It was my fault, too, I guess. When we were married I was not like I am today. I had the figure of a little girl. I didn't take care of myself and I just grew to be like I am now. So I couldn't blame Hugh for—well—for looking at other people now and then. I tried to understand. He had never asked me for a divorce. And he was always gentle, but brooding and miserable. If he had asked, I would have given him his freedom, even though I loved him more, much more than when we were married. I would have done anything for Hugh.

EXPLAINS 'PHONE CALL

"Last night . . . stayed home with the children. We had a little New Year's party just among ourselves. We didn't know where Hugh was. The children were all in bed around 1 o'clock and so was I, but I couldn't get to sleep. I know that it was after 4 o'clock when the telephone rang, and I was so glad, too, when I heard Hugh's voice. He said he was at the office, that he had come to a decision about our affairs and that he was going over a lot of business matters and that I would hear from him early in the day. It had been a long time, Mr. Colt, since Hugh talked to me like that. His voice was tender. He told me he had missed me. He said he wished things could be as they used to be. And he told me that no matter what he had done he had never stopped loving me. And then he hung up."

For a moment there was silence . . . Mrs. Baldwin had not mentioned her visitor of the night before—the mysterious caller of whom we had been told. But Colt held that back.

"Why did you come here this morning?" he asked.

"I had just read the papers," Mrs. Baldwin explained. "I knew perfectly well that Dr. Baldwin had been involved with Lola Carewe, as she called herself, and I knew that she was an evil influence in his life. Some of the papers published some very unpleasant insinuations."

Colt glanced at me. So Dougherty was up to his old tricks again! In our conversation during the night, Dougherty had expressed his suspicions of Dr. Baldwin, suspicions now echoed in printer's ink. There was one thing that Dougherty could not keep from doing and that was talking to reporters.

"I tried to get Hugh on the telephone," Mrs. Baldwin went on, "but Miss Simon explained that he had gone out."

Here Miss Simon interrupted. "The doctor went out shortly after I arrived this morning, Mr. Colt, and soon after he was gone Mrs. Baldwin telephoned. When he came back I told him that Mrs. Baldwin was on her way to the office. He looked at me without replying, then went into the private office, closing the door. I didn't know that he had locked it."

"And that is all you can tell me, Miss Simon?" asked Colt.

"That's all I know, sir."

Colt turned to me.

As I hurried out, Colt was resuming his examination, getting the factual data about Dr. Baldwin, his age, his income, his relatives, the medical societies of which he was a member and all the minutia of his private affairs that might be necessary. By the time I had returned with Detective Marshall in his ornamental uniform of blue and gold, Colt had a sheaf of notes beside him, which he turned over to me. While Marshall and I waited, he continued:

"Under the circumstances, Mrs. Baldwin, it will be necessary to delay the plans for the funeral until the police have completed their investigation. I would suggest that you return home now. Have you relatives in the city?"

The stout little lady stood up and dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief, three inches square, the perfume of which filled the room.

"Only my children," she answered. "We have two boys and a girl. They will have to be told."

She extended a plump little hand.

"You've tried to be very kind to me. Thank you, Mr. Colt."

"May I go home with her?" entreated Miss Simon, impulsively. But Mrs. Baldwin straightened her hat, insisting:

"No, thank you, my dear. I think I would rather be alone."

Synopsis

Lola Carewe and her guest, Christine Quires, are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, the last person to see Christine alive. Lola had blackmailed Everett. He, however, claims that Christine discovered a plot to kill Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. After robbing a bank to buy her a ruby, Basil disappeared. His parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Edward Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. He had stated heart failure caused the deaths. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead.

Now Go On

"Lola Carewe was an evil influence in his life," said Mrs. Baldwin.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

The Injured Chinese Asks for the "Plitty Lady"

Catherine opened the door of the sick room at my knock and spoke in low but decisive tones.

"Good! I need you. Come in!"

She gestured toward the bed and put her finger on her lips before she drew me across the threshold and closed the door between us and the living room.

"Asleep just now."

Her lips formed the words. I could read them but no sound was audible.

I looked toward the man on the bed and saw that his eyes were closed, but I sensed by Katherine's manner that he was not asleep, yet that she did not wish to disturb him.

"He asked for you." Katherine's lips again formed the words noiselessly.

She gestured to a chair near the bed, and I sat down on it gingerly, being careful to make no slightest sound. But the man must have known I was there for his eyes opened suddenly and he gazed unwinkingly at me.

I made him no answer. I did not think he required any and after he had kept that unwinking gaze upon me for several seconds he spoke again.

"Plitty lady please sit down close. Like spik to you."

NEWS ABOUT LEE CHOW

"Of course. I'll sit close to you," I said cordially, and, taking up my chair, placed it close to the bedside.

"You see Lee Chow?" he demanded. "You see Lee Chow send?"

My throat went suddenly dry and I found it difficult to articulate the negative.

"No. I have not seen either of them." I said and could not forbear adding the monosyllable, "Why?"

Again the unwinking stare held my eyes.

"Because," he paused and I gripped my fingers into the arms of my chair to keep from crying out impatiently. "Because you see him plitty soon."

"Both of them?"

The expression of his face did not change and his voice was equally devoid of emotion as he answered:

"Yes. Lee Chow. Lee Chow send he come plitty soon. Lee Chow send me the word last night."

I had neither his poise nor his poker face and I swirled quickly and looked at Katherine with wild questioning in my eyes.

"I don't know any more than you do," she said. "He has been asking for you ever since yesterday evening."

I rose from my chair and walked toward her so that the man on the bed could not see my face.

MESSAGE FROM BIRD

"May I question him?" I asked, my lips just moving.

She hesitated, then nodded. "He's much stronger," she said, but there was doubtful hesitation in her voice. "But, if it doesn't excite him, it will be all right. I'll watch him and if I think he's overdoing it, I'll give you the high sign."

"All right." I assented briefly, and went back to my chair close to the bed.

"Tell me," I said, leaning over and trying to pierce that impersonal gaze, "how could Lee Chow send you any word last night? No one came into the room. I am sure."

Was there a glimmer of a smile at the back of his eyes? I could not be sure and it was fully half a minute before he spoke.

"Lee Chow no need come in. Nobody need come in. A bird in the tree, he tell me."

There was the faintest possible sound from Katherine. It was as if she had started to utter the monosyllable "Ah!" and then immediately closed her lips upon it. But I knew that something in the man's words had suddenly illuminated some obscure puzzling fact in her mind.

"She guess now," he said, lifting his frail hand with an evident effort and gesturing ever so slightly toward Katherine. "She no guess last night when bird in tree told me."

"Have you any more questions to ask him?" Katherine interposed smoothly, and I saw that she meant to make no comment upon the astounding thing which the wounded man just had said. But what did it all mean?

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The dancing class of the Ambridge chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, which Dick Brown inaugurated some time ago and which meets each Saturday morning before the regular meeting of the Junior Komic Club, has progressed so far that he is thinking of staging a children's show for the club.

Several hundred children attend this class every week. Some of the youngsters receiving instructions last Saturday were: Yolanda Gabriel, Helen Shelsheda, Dorothy Gabriel, Sophia Novack, Rose Callahan, "Babs" Bernic, Mary Uffelman, Ruth Wrono, Pearl Jones, Anna Kowalewski, Helen Robinsky, Reta McGowan, Thelma Cushing, Martha Prata, Esther Chapela, Mary Bernic, Doris Vogel and Katherine Morrelli.

GIRL DIRECTS PROGRAM

At the Cameraphone chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Klub the Cameraphone Orchestra, under the direction of "Tiny" La Perthee, played several popular numbers with the members joining in the singing of the choruses. Some of the members present were: Kenneth Ames, Mary Averman, Eugene Bertie, Jack Dalzell, Mary Fox, Bernice Franklin, Sara Hagenseand, Geraldine Iorinda, James Milholland, Amelia Natalie, Martha Rodgers, Robert Miller, Frank Conn, Jack Conn, Harold Sherman.

BIG SHOW SUNDAY

All the youngsters are enthusiastic about the big show to be held at the Stanley Theater next Sunday, when the members who have attended four of the regular weekly meetings of the club since April 9 will be the guests of the Sun-Telegraph and Warner Theaters. And what a show it is going to be. The entertainment under the direction of Frank Roberts, William C. Pearce and Joe Murdock, promises to be packed full of laughs for the youngsters.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, and you must, send your name, address, name of your parents, school you attend, date and year of your birth to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

Time for a Decision

The County Commissioners Should Proceed with the Wabash Tunnel Project or Definitely Reject It

The County Commissioners are understood to have made a tentative agreement with the Pennsylvania Water Company through which the obstruction of the Allegheny River Boulevard at Nadine will be removed.

The litigation that was holding up the building of the Town Hall is out of the way.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, who was in the hospital with a broken ankle for many weeks, is back on the job.

The time has come for action on the county projects that have been so long delayed.

It is especially desirable that something definite be done at once on the proposed purchase of the Wabash railroad bridge and tunnel and their conversion into a new avenue of communication between the downtown section and the South Hills.

The old Board of County Commissioners may have been too hasty in purchasing the bridge and tunnel; but the new board, to whom the matter was referred for reconsideration by a court decision, shows a disposition to do nothing at all. They should shake off this lethargy and reach a decision.

There has been ample time to digest the testimony given at the public hearings. There has been ample time for the engineers to report. It is unfair to the people, particularly to the people of the southwestern part of the county and the downtown business interests, and it is unfair to the railroad people, to keep them any longer in doubt as to what the decision will be.

If engineering difficulties make the project inadvisable, let the County Commissioners say so, and turn to something else.

If it is practical; if it will more than pay for itself by increasing real estate values, and, in consequence, the tax return, in the Golden Triangle and the suburbs directly benefitted—why, then, let us go ahead without further ado.

Unnecessary delay at a time like this, when so many men and so many industries are desperately in need of work, is unpardonable.

A Relief 'Showdown'

The Labor Federation Is Right in Demanding That Gov. Pinchot and Congress Meet the Issue

Dispatches from Reading, where the State Federation of Labor is holding its annual convention, tell of dissatisfaction because of the failure of the State and Federal Governments to meet the unemployment relief issue.

Gov. Pinchot and Senator James J. Davis are listed among the convention speakers, and it is reported the delegates intend to call on them for a relief "showdown." They will be entirely right in doing so. The public is entitled to know what it may reasonably expect from Gov. Pinchot, the Legislature, President Hoover and Congress.

Allegheny County welfare organizations state that every day from 200 to 250 new families are added to the number requiring public relief. The number of destitute families, placed at 28,000 when the "Family-Help-Family" campaign started, is expected to reach 55,000 by December unless some radical improvement occurs in the business situation.

Allegheny County cannot take care of 55,000 families unaided. It cannot take care of half that number. Consequently it is of the highest importance to this community that definite promises of aid be obtained from the State and Federal Governments. In calling for a "showdown" the State Federation of Labor is helping Allegheny County and, of course, every other community in which unemployment is extensive.

We believe that nothing gives greater promise of relief than the proposal that the Government embark on a program of public works to be financed with a $5,000,000,000 "prosperity" bond issue, as originally proposed by William Randolph Hearst.

The State Federation of Labor might well address a memorial to Congress, calling for the adoption of this program.

A Useful Organization

The Urban League Is Doing Excellent Work to Promote the Welfare of Negroes

The Urban League, which will hold a three-day national conference in Pittsburgh, beginning tomorrow, is one of our foremost agencies of social service. It serves Negroes, and has an enviable record of good works.

The Urban League of Pittsburgh, of which R. Maurice Moss is executive secretary, reports that during the past year it conducted a vocational opportunity campaign, handled 111 school cases, conducted neighborhood groups that sought to improve the homes and neighborhoods in which Negroes live, aided talented children, helped the unfortunate, organized a Better Baby Study Club, co-operated with the Red Cross in food-preserving activities, conducted courses in civics, homemaking, history, music and handicrafts, and maintained a fellowship at the University of Pittsburgh.

Beginning in 1914 Negroes came to Pittsburgh in large numbers to work in our mills. The Urban League held its national convention here 10 years ago and suggested procedure for the assimilation of the newcomers.

With many of the Negroes now unemployed the social problems to be considered at the conference this year are of no less importance.

Leaders in social service, white as well as Negro, will take part in the sessions. All Pittsburghers interested in promoting the welfare of a large section of our population will find it profitable to attend the meetings, most of which are open to the public.

The Urban League deserves Pittsburgh's cordial support.

Water Company Earnings

Increase in Net Income Suggests That Rates Should Be Reduced.

The South Pittsburgh Water Company, which supplies water to several of the South Hills wards, reports an increase of $116,411 in its net income last year over the figures for the year before.

There has been complaint about the company's charges, particularly the service charge.

The fact that it was able in a year of depression to increase its net earnings very substantially raises the question if its rates are not unfairly high.

City Council would do well to inquire into the matter. There is strong incentive for doing so in the fact that the city is one of the company's largest customers.

Pay Dirt!

When good folks of the nation went prospecting for TEMPERANCE 13 years ago, they turned up a glittering lode called Prohibition. Every vein of this had been "SALTED" by political and professional Drys. And how it had been salted! But the good folk did not know it, then.

Prohibition was to be the panacea for all ills. Passage of the Eighteenth Amendment was to be followed by closing of all jails, asylums, poorhouses. There were promised unlimited "chickens for every pot," unlimited "cars for every garage," poverty was to be wiped out, taxes were to dwindle, wealth was to abound.

AND THIS ALL CAME TRUE—for those who found Prohibition a BONANZA—that is, the bootleggers, the rumrunners, the speakeasy proprietors, the Big Shots and the Little Shots of the Crime Syndicate—BUT NOT for the law-abiding, industrious, home-building, family-rearing TAXPAYER.

Today, jails are filled, and our asylums and poor houses, courts are clogged, police are helpless before powerful Crime Syndicates, lawlessness is rampant, official corruption is on every hand, intemperance increases and there is growing contempt for all laws.

Prohibition lifted Bootleg Booze into Big Business, UNREGULATED and UNTAXED. And DRY Congressmen who refuse to permit a referendum on the question MAINTAIN it as the GREATEST INDUSTRY IN THE LAND TODAY.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What a Modern Girl Wants

I guess I'm "just a sweet, old-fashioned dumbbell." Here are some excerpts from a letter written by a Modern Girl, which tell me right where I "get off." All right. Porter, put my luggage in a taxi!

* * *

"Probably you expected to stir up a lot of ire when you wrote today's item 'How to Be a Woman-Charmer.' I assume that your convictions are diametrically opposed to what you have written, otherwise you are a man."

* * *

(No, dear heart—just a pre-war woman, slightly mellowed-in-the-wood. And I have no "convictions"—only theories and guesses. But, why take me seriously?)

"If there is one thing EVERY woman has had plenty of, it is FLATTERY," continues this ultra-modern young woman. (But there ISN'T that much in the world, is there?) "Let a man tell her that she has 'beautiful shoulders, wonderful eyes or a cute little nose'—and she's got his number! If the man is married, and begins to work on a woman from the flattery angle, you can just bet—"

* * *

(Of course, you can! What does a girl EXPECT, when she plays in another woman's back-yard? Orange blossoms?)

* * *

* * *

"Be IMMACULATE. Be hygienic to the Nth. degree, even as you expect women to be." (Oh, have a heart, Girl—wouldn't you ever let him wear his fishing-clothes and skip a shave or two?)

"Be YOURSELF. Be consistent.

* * *

(But how can a man be "himself," unless he has an occasional change of heart? How can he be "himself" and be emotionally "consistent?")

* * *

"Be INTERESTED. In something. Any man who simply LISTENS, lapping up all a woman has to say, is classified by the fair sex as a spineless sap. Men won't tolerate him. And women like men's men." (Of course, they do! But they still have a soft spot for crooners—and movie-stars.)

* * *

Finally, this frank and interesting young woman sums up a woman's ideal man as—"A clean man who is on the level, straight-shooting, but not discourteous, and above all, who is HIMSELF!"

* * *

Hear, hear! That's the kind of man we ALL want and admire! But IS that any reason why he should not have any of the finer graces?

* * *

"Cleanliness" is fine, of course. But we can't all marry Hospital interns. And a man's matutinal ablutions are taken for granted, not classed as one of his lighter graces. Still, it must be easy to be a woman-charger, these days. Just wash behind the ears, and be YOURSELF!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 11.—Billy Seaman was once one of the town's gallants who could always be found where lights blazed brightest—a vivid figure in Broadway's farce and fatigue. Rich, personable, he was by day a sterling business man, but by night a play boy.

An earlier pal of Jimmy Walker, he was almost a constant companion during the days the Mayor was building his political fences. His penthouse, "Skye Farm," in Waverly Place, was the scene of many gatherings of notables from the world of sport, the stage, screen and literature.

Seaman fell in love with lovely Phyllis Haver of the films, and after a whirlwind courtship they were married. Their devotion became a part of the White Way lore.

An evening recently Seaman was persuaded to come out of his long domestic retirement to attend a stag banquet in the Broadway section. It was an evening of hale frolic and wassail. And Seaman, tiring of it early, excused himself to go to his club to write letters.

He left word for a friend at the banquet to call for him there and drive him home. His friend got the wrong address, pulled up in front of one of the "take joints" and inquired of an outside capper if Seaman was there. He was told he was but had stepped out a moment and would be back.

The friend ordered a round of drinks for several percentage ladies-for-sale, then, becoming suspicious of the place and at Seaman's non-appearance, asked for his check. He was presented with one for $86 and after a noisy argument settled for $20.

Emerging, he found Seaman leaving his club a few doors away and told of his experience. Angered, Seaman rushed into the gyp dive, was surrounded by gorillas, but was so fierce in his demand for his friend's $20 that he miraculously got it. Also a newer appreciation of the fireside and slippers.

George Gershwin's father recently drove by a traffic light and was ordered to the curb. When the cop descended like a thundering cloud and asked his name the answer meant nothing. So the elder Gershwin had a sudden inspiration. "Maybe you know George Gershwin?" he inquired. He is a shy little man with an accent and piping voice. "Well, if you're a friend of the Judge I'll let you go this time," said the policeman, and the bewildered parent drove on.

* * *

Then there is Police Commissioner Mulrooney's yarn about the New York-born cop who jerked a speeder to the curb and exclaimed: "Where are you from?" Meekly: "Cleveland, sir." To which the cop sneered: "Cleveland? Then what the hell are you doing with an Ohio license plate?"

* * *

Also the experience of the late Will Hogg with insular ignorance that often abounds in the metropolis. After a department store purchase, he asked the clerk to express it to Houston, Tex. "Houston, Tex." murmured the amoeba of intelligence in a quizzical poise. "Let's see, that's in Cuba, isn't it?" And those who knew Will Hogg could give you a sketchy outline of what he said. But this journal is not printed on asbestos.

The sudden blooming of banjo torched pop corn stands in sundry midtown crevices is a commercial phenomenon surpassing the growth of orange juice hutches a few years ago and spawning a litter of over-night millionaires. Corn cribs offer a new version of county fair crackerjack. It came into immediate popularity, not only among passers-by, but the limousine trade. Too, speakeasies and gambling houses began to feature bowls of it free. The last "rage" of pop corn was during the Chicago world's fair.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I think your stuff is pretty fair," says he, "until you begin to talk about God. Then you make a fool of yourself, trying to pawn off that old superstition stuff on modern people. How do you get that way? Do you suppose there'd be such misery around in the world if there were a God? Where can you find any proof of any higher power than man?"

I can find it in man himself, stranger. The God you deny is in you. In your angry demand for truth; in your rebellion against cruelty and unfairness; in your bitter, bewildered dream of a better world, there is proof of God—all the proof you need.

Consider your own strangeness. What is your body? It is the body of an animal. It is no finer, indeed not quite as perfect or as healthy a body, as the body of a gorilla. A little while ago it lived in a jungle.

Millions of human bodies are still living in jungles. You lived as they are living, in conditions of horrible fear and filth, ignorance and brutality—a brute life suited to your brute body.

And yet there was something in you better than the brute. There was something in you that was not suited to jungles; that hated jungles; that reached out beyond the fear, filth, ignorance and brutality of jungle life.

There was tenderness in you even then—tenderness that sometimes triumphed over selfishness; that made you willing to sacrifice yourself for those you loved. There was a crude sense of justice, a crude sense of beauty.

How mysterious that these things should have been in you, who were physically and mentally so like an ape? Why should they have been in you? They did not make life easier for you. Indeed, they often made it much harder for you. Yet there they were, whispering to you, stirring up strange dreams, goading you on to amazing rebellions and adventures.

AND STILL THEY WHISPER, AND STIR, AND GOAD!

Through all the millions of years of man-life that inner mystery has never ceased; that inner presence has never died.

Where is God?

There is God in ourselves. We complain that God does not save the world; but there is enough God in each one of us to save the world if we would express Him.

IF WE WOULD ONLY LIVE UP TO THE GOODNESS IN OURSELVES THERE WOULD BE HEAVEN ON EARTH.

Have faith in the goodness in yourself. Have faith in the God in every man. Believe that God will triumph over the beast in man as He has always triumphed. Believe that God will keep on bringing man up out of the jungle.

Have faith and back that faith with action. Keep on hoping, keep on praying, keep on fighting for decency.

"By all that He requires of me,
I know what God himself must be."

BE GOD, AND YOU'LL FIND GOD. THE MORE GOD YOU USE, THE MORE GOD YOU WILL HAVE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

What kind of a loser are you?

Can you spring back with enthusiasm and try it again?

Do you get angry and blame your partner, if you have one?

It is not very pleasant to play with a person who loses his temper?

And you don't get much satisfaction from your play spells if you rage over defeat when the other fellow gets the best of you in legitimate play.

If you are a parent, you have probably censured or possibly whipped your son for fighting during games.

Usually he resorts to fisticuffs because he disputes the right of some other lad to the points he wins.

His opponent is likely to have been the winner because he kept his head and your son is perhaps depending upon his brawn, and that won't do.

Aren't you little better than your son when you constantly contest the winners over your play?

Being older and more sensible you don't fight with your companions, which is about the only difference.

The President and Congress

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Hoover message, coming in the form of criticism of Congress after that body had rejected some of his plans, instead of coming before the vote when it might have done some good, was clearly intended as a campaign document. However, the pro-Hoover press is not impressive in its attempt to turn the criticism of the House into an indictment of the Democrats. The President's criticism is based on the fact that the House not only rejected his economy plan but that of the Democratic Ways and Means Committee. In truth, it was not a criticism of a party at all, but of the members of the House who rejected the leadership of both the Republican and Democratic leaders in that body.

Thus there is something a bit strained in the comment of a pro-Hoover newspaper that—

"The Republicans were delighted while the Democrats and their Progressive allies were obviously stung."

In heaven's name, what Republicans were delighted? LaGuardia, who led the revolts? The great mass of Republican members who are criticized by the President in his message because they refused to follow Snell? And what Democrats were "stung?" The leaders whose program was lost in the revolt?

The truth is that there was a revolt against the leadership in both parties, and those in revolt combined their forces irrespective of party politics and smashed the program.

Real Explanation Of the Trouble

There was nothing new in the President's insistence that the budget must be balanced. Speaker Garner said the same thing more impressively when he took the floor a few weeks ago. Everyone agrees that there must be a balancing of the budget. Far fairer than the stories of the pro-Hoover press is the statement of Mr. Mellon in a London address on the reasons for the confusion in Congress:

"The confusion you read about in Congress is merely as to ways and means, and is almost inevitable under our system of framing revenue legislation. The important thing to remember is that the American Congress is seeking a way to levy over a billion dollars in new taxes, and that is not an easy thing for any legislative body to do, especially on the eve of a general election and in the face of depressed business conditions."

The real explanation of the trouble is to be found in the words—"especially on the eve of a general election." Were the election a year off, there would be less timidity and quicker action.

Senator Robinson Calls Attention

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, calls attention, too, to another of the difficulties in the balancing of the budget by Congress—the apparent inability of the administration accurately and positively to state what is required.

He says:

"The advice to balance the budget is good, but there would not have been that difference between the revenues and the expenditures if the estimates heretofore submitted to Congress, with respect to prospective revenues, had been approximately correct."

After the Congress turned its attention to ways and means to balance the budget, on the representation of what would be required, Secretary Mills, who furnished the figures, had to admit that he had been about $500,000,000 wrong!

When Congress started out to balance the budget it was told that a billion dollars would be necessary, and now it is found that much more than a billion will be required.

It is notorious that during the last two administrations it has been impossible to get a reliable estimate of revenues from the Treasury Department.

Promised to Cut Down Cost of Government

There is one feature of the President's message that will impress many as a bit smug. He wants the cost of government cut down through a reorganization of the governmental departments. Well, he promised that four years ago; he did not begin to be interested much until his opponent in 1928 in a newspaper article took him severely to task for doing nothing, and until the House put its own economy committee to work.

Even now he is evidently not in position to put forth a definite program. Had he taken his own promise of four years ago seriously he would be in position to submit specific plans to Congress for its approval.

When the deficit hit us like a cyclone and Congress met in December a message from the President submitting a complete program for reorganization would have been more impressive and useful than a message of mere criticism without a constructive plan at this hour.

A Hoover Deficit

And after all, this is the Hoover deficit, not the deficit of the Democrats. It was created when every branch of the government was in possession of the President's party. It has now been thrown into the lap of Congress, one branch of which is Democratic by a small majority.

The President says that to get the enormous sum required to wipe out the Hoover deficit, it is necessary to broaden the base in the matter of taxation, and however hard it may be to increase the taxes of the small man with a small income today, there is no other way, short of a very simple way—for the President to recommend the tapping of a source of revenue, now untouched, through which other nations get a very large part of their taxes.

The small man would not have to take on an extra burden; the big man, financially, would not have to cripple himself more to meet it, if the most prosperous business in America today were not immune from taxation. That business is the liquor traffic. Until that source of revenue is tapped again, the small man must bear his added burden, and the businessman, engaged in lawful enterprise, must bend his back to meet the cost of government.

Since the President has seen fit to call for "courage," is it ungracious to suggest that enough courage to meet the realities on this subject would do some good at this juncture?

On no other subject is there so much timidity and cowardice, and no cowardice is responsible so much for the billion dollar deficit and the necessity for more onerous taxation.

Bainbridge Colby Reminds Us

Right or wrong, the popular impression is that the President does not want to balance the budget by taxing the liquor traffic; and that he does not want to increase the cost of government by transferring the debts of 11 nations to the backs of the American people.

Apropos of the constant propaganda that the plight of Europe—which is no worse outside Germany, than the plight of the United States—is due to payments on the debts to this country, Bainbridge Colby again reminds us that the last year payments were made, it cost Europe but $250,000,000; that this amounted to but one-half of 1 per cent of the estimated national incomes of the nations making the payments, and to but 2.7 per cent of their annual budgets.

"They spend more than that for almost any other purpose that seems agreeable," he adds. "For armaments alone they spent eight times as much."

No nation's economic fabric is being wrecked today by the payment of debts that take one-half of 1 per cent of the national income and less than 3 per cent of their budgets.
